Urges Recall of Pioneer Spirit

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The nation's First Lady told University of Utah graduates Saturday night the vitality of American society "depends on an informed electorate with beliefs about what is right and wrong.

"There is no single vice in a citizen of a democracy greater than apathy," Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson declared with reference to the warming presidential election campaign in which her husband is expected to be the Democratic party candidate.

After viewing the trails Mormon pioneers traveled in settling Utah more than a century ago, the President's wife said a pioneering spirit was needed in this generation too.

She stressed the "great society" the President has set as the goal of his administration. Pointing to hardships the Mormon pioneers overcame, the First Lady said they had "the faith that what they were doing was right and necessary.

"It was the faith that men and women together could build a great society on this earth — one that would give character and compassion to its inhabitants. They were not interested in security or comfort. They were interested in an ideal."

Mrs. Johnson told an outdoor commencement audience they must become involved in society, face the tests of grasping its complex problems and "become concerned about the wrongs of our society, the wrongs of our world."

"This American society can never achieve the destiny it seeks, can never remove the slums, or the prejudice, or the ugliness, unless citizens join in the great adventure of our time," Mrs. Johnson said.

On the second day of a four-day western journey, the First Lady spent her time in predominantly Morman Utah. She took a spectacular ride in a tiny four-passenger gondola of an aerial tramway to lunch at the 9,300-foot summit of Pioneer Ridge in the Wasatch Mountains.

She also took a walk down the dusty main street of the old mining town of Park City, now being rehabilitated into a year-round recreation area.

Climaxing her day, the First Lady spoke at the university, founded on a hill in the eastern portion of Salt Lake City by the Mormons in 1850.

She flew back to Jackson Lake Lodge, Wyo., after the speech.

School Registration Slated This Week

Elementary school registration will be held at Sedalia schools on Aug. 19 and 20.

The following must register:

Anyone who has moved into the district since the close of school last year.

All first graders who have not previously registered. If first graders were registered last spring in the meeting for that purpose, it is not necessary to re-register. However, if there has been a change of address they should re-register.

All first graders must present birth certificates and have reached six years of age on or before Sept. 15, 1964.

Everyone who registers must have immunization record or letter from the parents stating objection.

There will be a half day of school Friday, Sept. 4, and full day classes begin Tuesday, Sept. 8.

The Weather

Fair to partly cloudy through Monday. High Sunday upper 80s; low Sunday night 60s.

Kaysinger Meeting Set Tuesday Night

Community leaders from west central Missouri counties will meet at the Warsaw Community Hall Tuesday at 7 p.m. for further planning on the Kaysinger Dam project. The meeting was called Friday as the House and Senate completed action on the initial $2.5 million in funds to begin the project.

President Johnson now has the measure and his approval is expected shortly. The President has indicated he will turn the first shovel of dirt for the project sometime in October.

Crash Kills Youth

HIGGINSVILLE, Mo. (AP)—Michael Kent Hook, 14, of Higginsville, was injured fatally Friday in a three-car accident six miles south of Higginsville on Missouri 13. He died in a Kansas City hospital.

His mother, Mrs. Deloras L. Hook, 36, one of the drivers, and Jimmie Shoals, 46, of Kansas City, another driver, suffered cuts and were treated at the Lexington, Mo., hospital.

The third driver, David Lee Crull, 32, Hooper, Neb., was not injured.

Hike In Milk Prices Asked For Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department was asked Saturday by Missouri senators to increase milk prices to farmers under federal milk marketing orders in Missouri because of drought conditions.

In a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, Sens. Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long, Missouri Democrats, urged support of the requests of the Sanitary Milk Producers of St. Louis and the St. Joseph Milk Producers Association for hearings on a possible price increase.

The senators said milk production costs are now higher because of drought conditions.

They noted that because of drought farmers in 71 Missouri counties are now eligible to cut hay and graze livestock on land they took out of production under government programs.

Prices to farmers could be increased at least 25 cents per hundredweight (46½ quarts) without placing milk in an unfavorable competitive position, sanitary milk producers have contended.

Predict Fall of Several Records

State Fair Gears Opening

THE 62nd ANNUAL Missouri State Fair which opens next Saturday, appears to be headed for a record breaking week in more ways than attendance figures. This prediction is attributed to a review by Secretary of the Fair W. H. "Chubby" Ritzenthaler, and reports from the various department Superintendents.

More interest is being shown in this year's fair by Missourians than in many previous years. This is based on the number of requests earlier in the year for the annual premium catalog. "Entries in every division are terrific," Ritzenthaler commented while discussing the exposition which opens for nine days Saturday. "I not only refer to the livestock department, 4-H and FFA divisions, but to the agriculture, horticulture, floriculture, home economics, fine arts, music, philately and hobbies, poultry, rabbits, and other departments too numerous to mention. The horse show has had a tremendous entry list, in fact, the largest in the history of the fair."

As it appears now if all the livestock entered shows up it will also be necessary to house some of the entries under tents.

Three events, competitive in sports, are gaining in interest. The bait casting tournament, surprisingly, is attracting much more attention among the "city" fishermen and women than the "country" fishermen. The archery contest is another event becoming popular as well as the state horseshoe pitching tournament. Another event bringing out more contestants each year is the state championship chicken barbecuing contest. This one-afternoon event has more entries than ever before. It will be held Thursday, Aug. 27.

The horse show opens Sunday night, Aug. 23, running through Saturday night, E. F. Strickler, superintendent, reported. At the closing date of entries, July 30, there were 165 more entries than in 1963, when the largest list in the history of the fair totaled 700. This has made necessary the erection of large tents for stables since all such accommodations in the permanent buildings are filled. One tent is 210 feet by 60 feet, another 180 by 60.

Exhibitors of modern farm machinery have taken over every available space allotted to that exhibit, and additional land was made available which was quickly rented by exhibitors never on the fair grounds before. According to the fair official, it will be the largest farm machinery exhibit in the history of the fair.

The annual million dollar livestock and farm machinery parade this year will exceed the "million dollar figure" and will be far longer than an anticipated mile-long parade. This comes on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in front of the grandstand.

Ritzenthaler also reported the largest acceptance of invitations for Missouri's farm families has been received. Out of Missouri's 114 counties, 109 families will attend the fair on Monday, designated as farm family day. In answering invitations mothers and dads indicated they will have their children along for the day. The total number of acceptances are well over 450 persons. The five counties which apparently will not participate are McDonald, St. Louis, Stoddard, Dunklin and Clark.

Again this year the Missouri Volunteer Firefighters Association will furnish fire protection to the fair grounds, supplemented if necessary by the Sedalia Fire Department.

The fair program in front of the grandstand calls for six auto racing dates — modified or jalopy state championship events on Saturday night, Aug. 22, and or Friday night, Aug. 28; late model stock car races Sunday afternoon, Aug. 23; the 100-mile championship race of stock cars on the half mile track, Saturday afternoon, Aug. 22; and the 100-mile futurity race on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 30. The tri-state midget racing care will be on the half-mile track Saturday night August 29.

Sunday night, Aug. 23, the State Fair show opens for five nights. This program will include various top stars of television and radio.

On both the opening and closing Sunday mornings of the fair, religious services will be conducted. These include Catholic services in the large coliseum with mass at 8:30; Protestant services in the grandstand from 8:30 to 9:30; Lutheran services in the Highway Gardens 8:30 to 9:30 and Jewish services from 8:30 to 9:30, the location to be announced.

Because of election year, politics are expected to be an event on Tuesday, legislator's day, and again on Wednesday, governor's day, when both Democrat and Republican candidates are expected to be circulating around the grounds.

Another annual event expected to attract the political candidates from both major parties will be the ham breakfast Monday morning at 8:30 with Donald "Red" Blanchard, Mason City, Iowa., the speaker. This will be held in Smith-Cotton High school cafeteria.

Democratic candidates who have indicated they will be here are United States Senator Stuart Symington; Secretary of State Warren E. Hearnes, candidate for governor; William Randall, candidate for re-election as congressman of the fourth district; Attorney General Thomas F. Eagleton, candidate for lieutenant governor; James C. Kirkpatrick, candi-

Back-Handed Endorsement For Kennedy

LBJ Disclaims Any Intention Of Intervening

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson voiced "a very high regard" for Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy on Saturday while disclaiming any intent to intervene in the selection of a Democratic senatorial candidate in New York.

In what was read by many politicians as a back-handed endorsement of the attorney general for the nomination, the President praised Kennedy highly for his public service in the Cabinet and as counsel for the Senate rackets committee.

Johnson told a news conference: "I have worked closely with him and admire his performance."

Kennedy himself is reported shopping around for newspaper backing as a preliminary to an expected decision to plunge into the senatorial contest.

He has encountered generally hostile reaction from New York newspapers to his proposed candidacy on the grounds that his residence in Virginia and his voting in Massachusetts would make him a "carpetbagger" candidate in New York.

The President said Kennedy has not discussed the New York situation with him. He said the selection of a nominee is up to state Democrats, adding that when a decision is made, "I am sure that it will be a good one."

Johnson's willingness to discuss the matter publicly was interpreted in some quarters as indicating that Kennedy is likely to get needed backing in New York.

Kennedy has said he will not seek the nomination without the support of Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City. There are indications he has received some assurances he will get clearance in that quarter.

If he gets the nomination, Kennedy obviously will receive strong support from Johnson, who ruled the attorney general and other Cabinet members from consideration as a vice-presidential candidate.

Politicians generally feel the President would like to have the opportunity in his own campaigning to boost Kennedy as a demonstration of his continuing political link with the family of his predecessor. And this would tend to take the sting out of his decision against having the attorney general as a running mate.

$9.5 Million County Roads Contract Let

The Missouri State Highway Commission, acting under bids received on July 30, has awarded contracts for improvement on portions of two state highways, U. S. Route 50 and state supplementary Route C in Pettis county. Total cost of the work is $900,568.

The U. S. Route 50 work is for about 4.4 miles of grading and laying one 24-foot wide portland cement concrete pavement from a point about two miles east of Sedalia east to the Morgan county line. This work will cost $838,533 and was awarded to Bernard McMenamy, Contractor, Inc., and Subsidiaries of St. Charles.

The project on Route C will cost $62,035 and was awarded to the T and O Lime and Rock Co., of Sedalia. The work calls for the installation of a 175-foot continuous I-beam bridge over Walnut Creek, about four miles southeast of Sedalia, along with about four-tenths of a mile of necessary grading and seal coat surfacing of approaches.

Construction will be carried out under the supervision of the Department's District 4 office at Kansas City, where Leland D. Fletcher is the district engineer. W. L. Pollock, district construction engineer, will direct the work with B. A. Estabrooks of Sedalia as the resident engineer in active charge of both improvements.

The contractors have been notified that work on the two projects may begin on or about Aug. 24.

The Missouri State Highway Commission has completed contracts for work on 54.1 miles of the state's highways extending into 19 counties and the cities of Clinton and Sikeston. The bids, which total $15,253,837, were received on July 30.

Milk Prices Raise

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The price of home-delivered milk in Greater Kansas City went up a cent a quart Saturday.

Weapons Charges Termed 'Loose'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson accused Sen. Barry Goldwater Saturday of making "loose charges on nuclear weapons without any shadow of justification."

The Republican presidential candidate, said Johnson in a statement to a news conference, is thereby doing "a disservice to our national security, a disservice to peace, and for that matter a disservice to the entire free world."

"So it seems to me," the President said "that even at the price of some reflection, the Republican candidate ought to keep his lenses in his glasses, at least on the subject of nuclear warheads."

Training his wrath, too, on Goldwater's running mate, Rep. William E. Miller, the President accused the New Yorker of "equally false and reckless" interpretations of orders given to U.S. military commanders for the retaliatory strike last week against North Vietnamese patrol boats and bases.

The Johnson gibe at Goldwater and lensless eyeglasses was prompted by a photograph getting front page play — the Republican candidate poking a finger through frames he donned Friday so that photographers could get pictures without the reflections lenses sometimes cause.

This crack — and Johnson's attack — drew no direct response from the Arizonan immediately. "The senator has no intention of replying in kind," said a press aide in a statement. "He prefers to stick to the issues."

But, the statement went on: "Now perhaps the President will attempt to explain whether his advance warning given to the Communists enabled them to alert the antiaircraft defense which shot down two U.S. planes, resulting in the death of one pilot and the capture of another."

This was a reference to Johnson's speech on the night of Aug. 4, in which he announced the attack, while U.S. planes were in the air en route to the North Viet Nam bases.

The debate over Johnson's orders broke out last Wednesday at Hershey, Pa., where Goldwater told a news conference after a Republican unity session that they seemed to authorize commanders in Southeast Asia to use nuclear weapons.

When a reporter asked Goldwater to amplify, he said: "I would suggest you read his admonition to the commander of the 7th Fleet in which he said to use any weapons."

Goldwater said Friday he was not accusing Johnson of giving such authorization. But, he said, the President did use imprecise language and the public could have interpreted the orders that way.

Miller took much the same tack — that a literal reading of the orders could lead to such an interpretation.

At Saturday's news conference, Johnson jumped headlong into the controversy.

$13-Million Sought For Barry Drive

In Battle to Gain Votes In 185,000 Precincts of US

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican chairmen from across the nation got their marching orders for the presidential campaign Saturday: Help raise about $13 million for the battle to elect Sen. Barry Goldwater; meet vote quotas for each of the nation's 185,000 precincts.

They heard from Goldwater, the party's presidential nominee, and from Rep. William E. Miller, his vice presidential running mate, in closed sessions.

State GOP chairmen and finance chiefs met behind closed doors to talk about finances and campaign strategy.

Aides tried to hush a band of fez-wearing Shriners, holding a convention in the same hotel, who paraded noisily through the corridors.

Republican National Chairman Dean Burch estimated the Goldwater campaign will cost about two-thirds as much as the $20 million he said the Democrats plan to spend.

He said that would be roughly $13 million, and much of it will be spent to buy television time

Burch said the national committee has set vote quotas for each of the nation's precincts, and that if they are met Goldwater will win the White House.

But he had no figure on the total popular vote quota or on what it would mean in electoral votes.

State chairmen were handed precinct quotas at the meeting.

Burch said these were prepared by national committee aide

New Parking Lot May be Ready By Yule Season

Sedalia may have its 14th off-street parking lot — located at Second and Ohio — ready for this year's Christmas shopping rush if plans move as scheduled.

Councilman Ed Neighbors, chairman of the City Council's parking lot committee, said Saturday the contract is in the process of being awarded to Atkinson Construction Company. City Engineer Robert Cunningham has been authorized to notify the contractor and arrange for the firm to supply the necessary bond.

Awarding of the contract should be completed soon.

The Atkinson firm was the only bidder on the blacktopping project and their bid was below the city engineer's estimate. Atkinson bid $11,090.50 and their proposal called for completion in 90 days following the awarding of the contract.

City Engineer Cunningham indicated that he didn't think the project would require that long. If so, the lot should be ready for installation of meters and use by Christmas shoppers.

Downtown businessmen backed the 14th lot as a means of providing parking within the core shopping area. City Council in January approved purchase of the three buildings involved at a cost of $90,500.

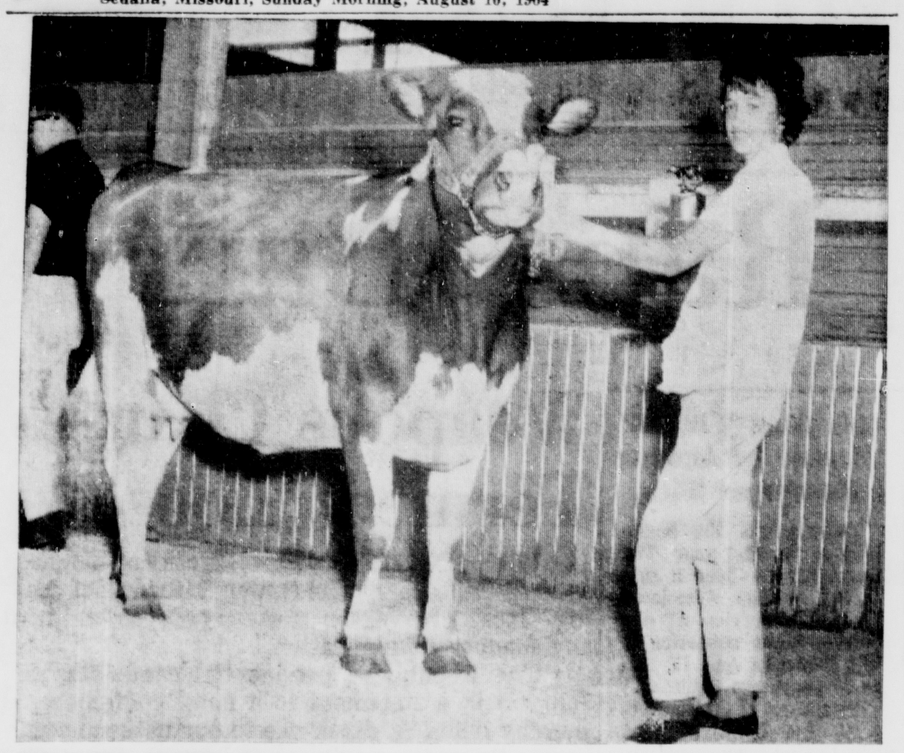

The buildings were leveled this summer and the lot has been standing idle accumulaitng weed growth and being utilized as free parking by some motorists.

Much of the delay was apparently caused by time required in the city obtaining deed to the property known as the old Best Laundry Building. Mayor L. L. Studer said Saturday that the city now has this deed.

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to take issue with you and others who write for newspapers and magazines. For years I have been bugged by your snide pokes at those who are a little overweight.

We are called "Blimps," "Waddling Ducks," "Baby Hippos"—and countless other unflattering names.

Why is it that no one ever says a word about the 50-year-old dame with a face like a dried prune wearing size eight Bermuda shorts and a halter top in the super-market? Her legs look like a canary's and invariably she is clomping around in a pair of wedgies—usually gold.

Yes, I am one of the slightly overweight ones, as you may have guessed, but my husband says he'd rather have me this way than looking like a freshly-hatched chicken.

Thank you for letting me have my say.—PIECE SPOKEN.

Dear Spoken: You are welcome. And now that I have let you have your say I will undoubtedly be in bad with all the dried prune, canary-legged, size eight ladies in gold wedgies.

---

Dear Ann Landers: I was jarred by your advice to the student who griped because the male teachers chummed up to the pretty girls in the class while the female teachers showed partiality to the handsome football players.

You said, "A little banana oil is an effective lubricant for the machinery of human relations."

Granted, but what can a student do about a clash of personalities? I loathe my English professor and he knows it. He vents his spleen by giving me C's when I deserve A's.

In a math course the answers are either right or wrong, but in English a student can get killed on "interpretation, clumsy syntax, over-writing, lack of originality—ad nauseum. If the professor decides your writing is "pedestrain and unimaginative" who can argue? Is this fair?—BITTER.

Dear Bitter: No it isn't, but where did you get the idea that life is always fair?

You are bound to encounter personality conflicts (unless you decide to go live alone on a desert island). The sooner you learn how to deal with all types of people the better. We all know extremely competent individuals who are surpassed by mediocre ones, simply because they can't get along with their superiors. Are you going to be one of them? Take inventory, friend.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 16-year-old has me worried. She is a beautiful girl, has a flair for clothes and is popular. I get so tired of her incessant pitch for compliments that I don't know what to do anymore.

Every day she asks, "Do you think my hair is REALLY all right? Should I wear bright lipstick or should I wear none at all? Does this dress make me look too fat? Am I too thin? Who is the prettiest girl in our crowd?"

My husband has heard some of this talk. He says she is just too confounded stuck on herself and that I should take her down a few pages instead of buttering her up by telling her what she wants to hear.

Will you give me your advice? —ZANZIBAR.

Dear Zan: Your daughter would not be begging for compliments if she were not starved for reassurance.

Try complimenting her without being asked. Such praise is infinitely more meaningful, and it will reduce the fishing.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Connally Will Nominate His Long-time Favorite

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—When Gov. John B. Connally of Texas and Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California nominate Lyndon B. Johnson for Democratic candidate for president, for Connolly it will be like old times.

Connally, closely identified with the President throughout ohnson's political career, nominated Johnson for president at the 1956 convention. Adlai Stevenson won.

He became a leading strategist in 1960 in Johnson's bid for the nomination, won by John F. Kennedy. Johnson was persuaded to surrender the powerful job of Senate majority leader to take second place on the ticket.

The hand of Johnson could be seen in Connally's appointment as secretary of the Navy, although Connally possesser the qualifications after experience as an administrator of two vast oir fortunes.

Connally resigned to run for governor in 1962, winning against strong opponents.

The governor rode in Kennedy's automobile Nov. 22 when the President was assassinated in Dallas.

One bullet struck Connally, crashing through his chest and collapsing a lung, piercing a wrist and embedding itself in his right leg. He was hospitalized for weeks and wore a cast on his wrist for months.

The governor won Democratic renomination for governor this year with ease.

A friend said recently that "Those Connally boys knew what wearing darned socks and patched britches were" when they helped their father on his ranch south of San Antonio.

At the University of Texas, Connally became a campus leader, and while still a student helped Johnson in one of his compaigns. Later be became a Johnson secretary in Washington.

Gov. John B. Connally

After World War II service in the Navy, Connally became a radio executive and then attorney and administrative executive for Perry R. Bass and the late Sid W. Richardson, extremely wealthy oilmen. He resigned to become secretary of th Navy.

Now 47, his hair straked with gray, he remains a handsome, personable man showing almost no effects of his No. 22 wounds. His current hobby is building a new home south of San Antonio and reclaiming semi-wasteland for ranching.

THE PRINCIPLE OF CHIROPRACTIC

The principle of life exists in the human body and uses the brain as its headquarters and power plant. The brain generates powerful life giving nerve energy sending it down the spinal cord, housed by the spinal column and out the spinal nerves to all parts of the body. These life giving nerve impulses supply the energy required by the body to carry on its normal functional activities.

The body can function properly and WILL BE HEALTHY IF ITS NERVE CHANNELS ARE FREE AND UNOBSTRUCTED. However, if the flow of this powerful, intelligent nerve force is altered, in either quantity or quality, by physical obstruction or negative mental qualitative interference, disharmony imperfection and disease are the inevitable results.

It is the mission of the Chiropractic doctor to locate and correct pressure and impingements on nerves that create interference to the normal flow of vital nerve energy throughout the body. Remember, sickness and disease usually do not "just happen" — they accumulate!

The above is brought to you as a public service by the Chiropractic Educational Committee.

Rose Society In Meeting

The Sedalia Rose Society August meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Hoback in Windsor Thursday evening, Aug. 6, with Mr. and Mrs. James Richardson assisting.

A picnic dinner was served cafeteria style on the patio to 34 members and eight guests, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Boney, Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Seifert, Dr. C. P. Blackmore and Miss Sandra Lee Strole.

The business meeting was presided over by the president, M. L. Edwards.

Oscar DeWolf, who is superintendent of the floriculture department at the Missouri State Fair and Edward E. Brummet, director of the Rose Show to be held on Wednesday, Aug. 26, at the State Fair, talked on the coming events.

The program chairman, Mrs. Everett Stumpf, introduced the guest speaker, Dr. C. P. Blackmore, formerly of Windsor, now of Newark, N. J. Dr. Blackmore specializes in hybridizing hemerocallis or day lilies, having more than 3,000 plants at his mother's place in Windsor and several thousand more at his experimental grounds in New Jersey.

Dr. Blackmore said that hemerocallis is too little known and a very interesting field, with no special requirements, no diseases and no two that come from seed are exactly alike. Always work with the best varieties, he advised. The United States is far ahead of any other country in hybridizing. In 1930 there were less than 200 varieties, at present there are over 10,000 registered varieties. Now what they are looking for is to get varieties for the bloom to stay open longer. Colored slides taken of some of the different varieties in bloom in his garden were shown by Dr. Blackmore.

The exhibit was Floribundas from your own back yard in an antique container, with Mrs. Paul Read, Mrs. Wilford Acker and Mrs. Leland Hoback having displays.

In the late 1830's, an American pioneer family takes their homemade raft down the Ohio River in the massive Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cinerama production, "How the West Was Won." Shown left to right are Agnes Moorehead, Debbie Reynolds, Kimm Charney and Carroll Baker. Karl Malden is at the stern, with Bryan Russell in foreground. The picture, filmed in Metrocolor on locations covering nine states, boasts a great cost of 24 stars. Starting Thursday at the Fox Theatre.

Burch said the Democrats have $7.5 million in the bank.

"We're even, that's all," he said.

Burch also made these points:

—Goldwater will travel the nation in a chartered jet. The Republicans also are chartering a four-engine propjet for Miller and for short hops by Goldwater.

—Sen. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska and Rep. Robert H. Michel of Illinois will serve as a Republican "Truth Squad" trailing Johnson and his running mate to reply to Democratic campaign statements.

—Nixon has promised to campaign for "at least five weeks steady" for the GOP ticket.

—Eisenhower has two dates, in Illinois and Oklahoma, and Burch hopes "he will accept considerably more than that." He said the Republicans hope to use Eisenhower's campaign talents in large cities.

—Miller will be on hand for Goldwater's campaign kickoff in Prescott, Ariz., Sept. 3. Goldwater, in turn, may go to Lockport, N.Y., to appear with Miller when the vice presidential nominee opens his campaign Sept. 5.

Chiefs Over A's For Championship

The Sedalia Chiefs capped one of their best seasons for quite some time as they won the Central Missouri Ban Johnson league championship Friday night. The Chiefs trounced Columbia in the third and final game of the playoffs, 16-0.

The Chiefs pounded out 15 hits against the Columbia pitchers and only committed one error while Columbia committed seven miscues. Although the locals bats were hot, the biggest factor in the victory for the Chiefs was the pitching of Jim Schnakenberg. He fired a one-hitter against the Columbia squad, tallying ten strikeouts and six walks, with the only hit soming in the first inning by the first batter. Schnakenberg threw a one-hit shut-out against Columbia earlier in the year. He received credit for both victories and the defeat against Columbia in the three games play-offs.

The Chiefs failed to score in the first inning but after that they tallied at least one run in each inning.

Bob Nagel led off the second-inning when he reached first on an error. Bob Lange then hit a two-run homer over the left field fence. Tim Morgan led off the third inning with a walk. He stole second base, advanced to third on an error, and scored on a single to right by Ernie Dow. Dow scored on a three base throwing error.

The Chiefs tallied two more runs in the fourth inning when Schnakenberg walked. Lonnie Schott reached first on a fielder's choice. Paul Horner reached first on a bunt to load the bases. Tim Morgan singled to left field scoring Schnakenberg and Schott.

One run was tallied in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings each by the Chiefs. Schnakenberg started the fifth inning with a single to right and advanced to second on a walk to Schott. Horner singled to right-center scoring Schnakenberg. Nagel led off the sixth inning with a single to left and advanced to second on a wild pitch. Dow doubled to left-center scoring Nagel. Schott led off the seventh inning with a single to left. He went to second on a fielder's choice and advanced to third on a wild pitch. Morgan hit a sacrifice fly to center scoring Schott.

The Chiefs broke loose in the eighth and ninth innings scoring four runs in the eighth and three in the ninth. Lange and Dow led off the eighth inning with walks. Bill Murphy singled to right scoring Lange and Dow advanced to third. Steve Young walked, loading the bases. Schnakenberg singled to center scoring Dow and Murphy with Young advancing to third. Young then scored on a passed ball for the fourth run.

Lange led off the ninth inning when he reached first on an error. Dow tripled to right scoring Lange. Jim Thomas singled to left center scoring Dow. Thomas advanced to third on two errors and scored on a fielder's choice.

This victory for the Chiefs gives them an over-all season record of 22 wins and five losses. Supporting reasons for the record are seen in the individual performance of the players. The Chiefs had six starters hitting above .300 for a season average. Two starting pitchers had an earned run average of less than one per game.

Don Crank had a successful first year as manager of the Chiefs.

New Soccer Officers For Council

Sedalia Khoury Soccer League activities picked up momentum last week with the new circuit council selected. Cleo E. Lees was reelected president of the council, William J. Mittenburg, vice-president; Addison A. Taylor, Jr. secretary; Dr. Russell Drenon, treasurer; Orville Jennings, Kent Maxfield, Eugene Kobisky, Kenneth Smith and Le Roy Freese.

Paul Klover, Circuit Director of the Khoury League, announced the first league games would start Sept. 19, with the Atom League of 7 to 9 years. The clinic will be held Saturday, Sept. 5 at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. at Liberty Park soccer field and all boys will be assigned to a team. There will be three leagues with boys agd 7 to 9 placed in Atom class, 10 to 11 placed in Bantam class and 12 to 14 placed in Midget class.

The Atom League games will be played on Saturday and the Bantam and Midget Leagues will be played on Sunday and evening under the lights at Centennial Park. The plans are for six teams in each class, however the determination will be made by the response of the business and civic organizations sponsoring teams for uniforms and equipment.

Klover said the soccer league will have four airmen with a good soccer background from Whiteman AFB who will referee and manage a midget team. Lt. Kent Maxfield played on a high school team in San Francisco, Calif., and was goalie for the U.S. Naval Academy. Captain Charles Alexander played and coached soccer in Connecticut. Sgt. Eugene Kobisky is a veteran soccer player from Cleveland, Ohio, and has been with Sedalia Khoury soccer for the past two years and will be back with the league again this year. Sgt. Denis Gosling has an outstanding record of soccer and played with two soccer leagues while serving with the Air Force in Europe.

Anyone interested in managing, coaching or sponsoring a soccer team should contact Klover at the Trampoline Center or call TA 6-9615 or TA 6-7973.

Final Game Played In Girls' Softball

The finals game of the season in the girls' Khoury softball league was played Friday night. In the chic league, the Beatles whipped the Fillies, 25-19, for second place in the league.

One home run was seen for the Beatles in the first inning by Carl Stretz with the bases loaded.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

WHAT perfect weather we have had the past few days—football weather for sure—and the cool days had its effect on these young Sedalians who expect to be members of the Smith-Cotton High School Tigers. The largest group of boys, 103, in several seasons were out for physical examinations Thursday evening. Of this number 52 were from the top three classes of high school. More are expected to report out within a few days obtaining physicals from their family physicians, after returning from vacation trips and such.

Looking over the available material, the boys — including ten lettermen—all look good, including a goodly number of new faces who have taken the "tip" and conditioned themselves this summer. Smith-Cotton may not win all their games, but it's an even bet their 1964 record will be at the least a slight improvement over the 1963 season.

It has been a long dry spell since the Tigers have had what one could claim an outstanding grid team. The Tigers have had good teams and good players, but in recent years have not had that last push to carry on a string of victories.

Actually in the last 16 years, the Tigers haven't had but three seasons one could call really outstanding. They were in 1948 when it was 9-1, including the winning of the 1948 Show-Me Bowl; 1949, it was 9-1 and another Show-Me Bowl title included; and in 1955 when it was 8-1. It might be interesting to note the one loss in 1948 was to William Chrisman of Independence, and in 1949 and 1955 it was North Kansas City which team tripped the Tigers.

Two new teams have been added to the Tiger schedule: St. Joseph Benton High School to play here on Nov. 4, and Springfield Parkview where the Tigers close the season on Nov. 12. One team has been dropped, Lee's Summit, made necessary because of playing dates.

It will not be an easy season for the Bengals, but they have only one way to go and that is up. Their last three seasons have been 1-3-5 for 1961; 2-1-6 for '62 and 2-7 for '63; with 1964 a (?) question mark.

STARTING Monday, a new program will be inaugurated into the Sedalia grade school system as far as athletics are concerned. It is a program which should have been started some years back and would have put Sedalia in comparative competition with with Jefferson City. It is grade school football.

Coach Dick Rees, Smith-Cotton's head football coach, has laid out a definite plan which will not only be a big help in future years to the high school football program, but will give more interest in the game to the youngsters in the lower grade.

Starting Monday for five straight mornings a clinic will be conducted at the Jennie Jaynes Stadium for the coaches in Mark Twain, C. C. Hubbard, Jefferson, Washington, Whittier, Horace Mann, and the Heber U. Hunt Schools. It consists of informing the coaches of the high school type of football, fundamentals of the game, and other points of interest, which in turn will be of interest to young students.

It will be an excellent program in athletics for the schools, and no doubt other athletic programs will be carried on to conform with the future, when these youngsters reach the high school level of education.

Much success of not only Jefferson City in competitive sports, but a number of other schools in Missouri, has been attributed to the early training in the grade school level.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made this past week by Joe Toler, wrestling chairman of the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion, and Post Commander E Glenn Lewis, the 1964-65 wrestling season is to open in Sedalia on Tuesday, Sept. 22. Gust Karras, promoter for the Legion, informed the local post officials he has arranged for a most interesting season in wrestling for the Sedalia area.

Karras is endeavoring to match up some outstanding wrestlers, not only form the Mid-West, but from the East, for events in the Sedalia ring. He has been in contact with some of the outstanding heavyweights of the country to make Missouri one of their stopping points through the season.

The Legion, only sponsors of wrestling in the area since the mid-Thirties, has been in contact with the promoter making plans for the approaching season.

The matches again will be staged in the remodeled Convention Hall at Liberty Park.

—o—

CONGRATULATIONS to the Sedalia Chiefs who Friday night clipped the Columbia A's Ban Johnson team's ears for the championship of the Central Missouri Ban Johnson League championship. The Chiefs were the winners of the Western Division and the A's winners of the Eastern Division.

The best two-out-of-three series play-off games were not without excitement. Columbia took the first game in Columbia 6-2, then came to Sedalia for the second game, only to lose on a quick thinking play by the Chiefs 9-8, after they had grabbed off a tie in the sixth inning when Jerry Barr and Tim Morgan collided while after a fly ball which was dropped and permitted two runs to cross the plate to tie up the score 7-7, then picked up a one-run edge in the eighth.

In the bottom of the ninth, the Columbia pitching went sour. One out was on the board. A single put one runner on and two walks filled the bases. The big chance came—win or lose—it had to be made. With the bases loaded, Steve Young took a swing at the first ball, then he crossed up with Columbians when he made a quick switch and bunted the ball with all runners running. Bill Murphy who had made the single, came tearing in from third and the only play left was to first and the Columbia third baseman who had slipped on the grass threw wild and Bob Lange came charging in after a lead-off of second, circled third and went home with the winning run.

As far as the Chiefs were concerned they had won a ball game, but customers sitting in the stands were in agreement it was smart and headsup baseball.

The Chiefs would give anything to get a three-game playoff series with the BJ Champions of Kansas City, the Katz.

Bowling Meet Monday

A meeting of all association officers and league officers of the Sedalia Men's Bowling Association will be held Monday night, August 17, at the Missouri State Bank of Sedalia. League supplies for the 1964-1965 season will be issued and league rules and procedures will be discussed. Door prizes will be awarded.

Tigers Begin '64 Football Practice Early Saturday

First Game Is Set For Sept. 11

Ten Lettermen Are Returning; Many New Faces

The Smith-Cotton Tigers football team began their workouts early Saturday preparing for the opening of the season, Sept. 11 at Marshall. There were more than 50 boys reporting for varsity practice in perfect football weather.

Thursday evening more than 100 boys reported to the Jennie Jaynes Stadium for physical examinations, a far better early report than the past several years. Coach Dick Rees commented the boys all looked good. A few will have some hard work getting into condition, but on the whole—"they look great to me, as of now," Rees remarked.

There were 52 boys in the top three high school classes, 22 are sophomores; 17 juniors and 13 seniors. From the Freshman class there were 22 and in the Eighth Grade 29.

The early morning practice sessions have been arranged to take care of some boys who are working fair week, and a late afternoon session is also in order. Another reason for the early-late sessions is that weather conditions become almost prohibitive for practice in extreme hot weather such as was experienced in the early practice days of 1963.

Coach Rees in looking over the roster with ten returning lettermen, five juniors and five seniors, and the moving up of the underclassmen from last year, feels confident he will have some excellent material for the 1964 grid team. Some of the boys who move into the Sophomore division from the Freshman group of 1963 have shown growth and weight increase, and will provide additional material for the "B" squad, not to mention some which may be moved on to varsity action.

Coach Rees also pointed out there is a possibility that he may have to "dip down" into the new Freshman squad for some material. "If it shows up, I'll not hesitate to pick out some of those boys as well," Rees indicated.

However, the 52 in the top three classes does not indicate all of the boys who'll be out for football. There are a number of boys who are no vacation, and some still working, but who will get their physicals from their own doctor and then report to workout and tryout for the varsity squad. It is known some fairly good-sized boys who anticipate playing this year are yet to report. Their only difficulty may be in catching up with the boys out early.

A new program is being added to the Sedalia Public School system this year and that is football in the grade schools. Coach Rees has arranged for a thorough program preceded by a clinic for the grade school coaches on the Smith-Cotton high school system of football.

The first clinic is scheduled for Aug. 17 and for the next four days ending on Friday, Aug. 21. They will be held each morning.

The schedule and clinic proposals are as follows with each coach to hold certain instructions:

Aug. 17:—9:30-10:00, Sedalia Football, Dick Rees; 10:00-11:30, Defensive Line Play, Skip Schulz; 1:15-2:30, Offensive Line Play, Fred Long; 2:30-3:30, Scouting, Wes Sanders; 3:30-4:30, Freshmen Football, Earl Finley.

Apologies To Connie Mack Baseball Team

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP)—Mayor Floyd Davis offered the town's apologies to a departing Connie Mack baseball team Saturday after threats had been made to the team Friday night by a group of Farmington youths.

The inciters of the flareup did not involve local ball players, police said.

R. B. Christian of Garland, Tex., southwest regional Connie Mack League director, said the Houston team, whose members had been the target of the threats, "regretted the incident, of course," but left Farmington "with no ill feelings." The Fort Worth, Tex., team also was orally accosted.

A dozen teen-agers were taken to the police station, questioned and released.

Charges of assault on a police officer were filed against a 17-year-old youth who was released to his parents.

Police said the trouble makers had a grudge against some members of the team for dating their girl friends.

Peggy Conley Wins Junior Girls' Title

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP)—Peggy Conley of Spokane, Wash., finally broke the runner-up habit Saturday and won the 16th annual U.S.G.A. National Junior Girls golf championship.

Miss Conley toured the front nine in an even par 35 in defeating Laura MacIvor of Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., 6 and 5.

The victor, runnerup last year in both the junior girls and the women's amateur tournaments, started her runaway victory by grabbing the 1st, 5th, 6th and 8th holes, making the turn at 4 up.

She birdied No. 10 and clinched the title on the 13th by dropping a par putt.

Miss MacIvor failed to win a hole.

"It was getting tiresome being runnerup," Miss Conley said on accepting her trophy.

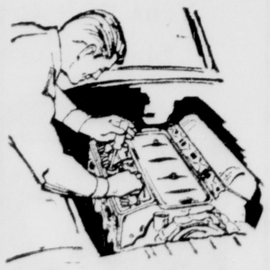

The 17-year-old girl had never won a major championship before. Besides her two second places last year, she also placed second in the Women's Wesetrn Junior tournament in Waukegan, Ill., last week.

Tigers 5, Athletics 1

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Rookie right-hander Dennis McLain, backed by a three-run first-inning uprising, checked Kansas City on three hits Saturday night in the Detroit Tigers' 5-1 victory over the Athletics.

McLain gave up a lead-off home run to Rocky Colavito in the second inning and then blanked the A's on two singles enroute to his third victory in six decisions.

Jerry Lumpe started the first inning rally with a one-out single and stopped at third on Al Kaline's double. Lumpe and Kaline scored on a single by Gates Brown, who then stole second. Bill Freehan's single delivered Brown and knocked out Kansas City starter Diego Segui.

Twins 9, Indians 3

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Catcher Jerry Zimmerman drove in four runs with a single and double, leading the Minnesota Twins to a 9-3 victory over Cleveland Saturday.

The Twins put it out of reach quickly, bombarding rookie Luis Tiant for five runs in the first two innings, and then held on behind Dick Stigman.

Stigman survived a three-run first and shut out the Indians the rest of the way, bringing his record to 6-11 with his first victory since July 3.

The Twins scored two runs off Tiant, now 5-2, in the first on Tony Oliva's double and Harmon Killebrew's grounder, and then kayoed him in the second. Three singles, a double and a wild pitch by reliever Sam McDowell, who took over with two out, produced three runs.

Red Sox 5, White Sox 2

Boston (AP) — The Boston Red Sox turned on Chicago Saturday and rode Felix Mantilla's three-run homer to a 5-2 victory over the pennant-hopeful White Sox.

The loss for the second-place White Sox, who had won 13 of 16 previous games with Boston, dropped them 3½ games behind American League leading Baltimore. The Orioles met the New York Yankees in a night game.

The Red Sox, losers of 12 of their last 13 games, landed on rookie Fred Talbot for four runs in the second inning.

Two singles, a walk, a force and Russ Nixon's sacrifice fly preceded Mantilla's smash into the left field screen, his 20th homer and second in as many games off White Sox pitching.

Right-hander Dave Morehead conquered early wildness for his seventh victory, although he needed late relief help from Dick Radatz.

Morehead had a four - hitter going through seven innings when he developed a blister on his pitching hand and had to be replaced.

BOONVILLE, Mo. (AP) — A young Boonville woman was killed Saturday evening in a two-car accident four miles west of Boonville on Intestate 70.

She was Sarah Baker, about 23. Five persons were injured, one of them critically, the Missouri Highway Patrol said.

Yankees 8, Orioles 1

BALTIMORE (AP) — The New York Yankees smacked down the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles 8-1 Saturday night with a potent 11-hit attack that included two-run homers by Roger Maris and Phil Linz.

Linz, a Baltimore native, also collected three singles while driving in four runs and scoring three.

The aroused, third-place Yanks, who had lost 10 of 16 games against Baltimore, moved to within 3½ games of the Orioles with a stern reminder they are still in the race. Baltimore maintained its three-game margin over the runner-up Chicago White Sox, who lost 5-3 to Boston.

Linz singled and scored runs in the first and third innings off loser Dave McNally, rapped a two-run single off Dave Vineyard in the fourth and homered off Vineyard in the sixth.

Jim Bouton, who had lost four of five previous decisions to the Orioles, hurled a steady five-hitter. The Orioles scored on Brooks Robinson's 19th homer in the second.

Linz scored on Maris' 19th homer in the first inning and rode hime on a double by Mickey Mantle in the third. Mantle, who jammed his left knee Friday, was removed in the fifth inning and given whirlpool treatments.

For the second night in a row, Baltimore's single-game attendance record was broken as 47,987 fans watched the second of a three-game set which concludes Sunday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pitcher Claude Osteen slammed a homer and double and posted his 12th victory as the Washington Senators defeated the Los Angeles Angels 6-2 Saturday.

Osteen, who needed Ron Kline's relief help in the eighth inning, tied the team's victory high in the four years since American League expansion by bringing his record to 12-8. Bennie Daniels won 12 games for the Senators in 1961.

Osteen doubled and scored the Senators' first run in the third inning and hit a homer off loser Ken McBride leading off the home in two days, with a man fifth. Ed Brinkman's second home in two days, with a man on, gave the Senators two more runs in the sixth.

Dodgers 4, Cardinals 3

LOS ANGELES (AP) —Nate Oliver raced home from third base while another man was being picked off first, giving the Los Angeles Dodgers the run they need for a 4-3 victory over St. Louis Saturday.

The Dodgers, trailing 3-1 after six innings, came up with three runs in the seventh, Oliver scoring the last one while Dick Tracewski was being run down after being caught off first.

Tracewski had knocked in the first two runs of the rally with a bad-bounce single past shortstop Dick Groat.

Bob Gibson had allowed the Dodgers only two hits after six, but Frank Howard and John Roseboro singled with one away in the seventh and a walk to Oliver loaded the bases.

Tracewski's single scored Howard and pinch runner Wes Parker and sent Oliver to third.

Gibson, charged with all four Dodger runs, suffered his 10th loss in 20 decisions. Joe Moeller worked seven innings for the Dodgers allowing five hits and three runs, and picked up his seventh victory against 11 defeats.

Phillies 8, Mets 1

NEW YORK (AP) — The National League leading Philadelphia Phillies scored six runs in the first inning after New York made two errors on one play, then pulled off a triple play in the second inning and romped to an 8-1 victory over the Mets Saturday night.

The victory kept the Phillies' lead at four games over the San Francisco Giants.

At the same time, the Mets became the first team elimnated from pennant contention and accomplished that two days earlier than last year. The Mets have lost 82 games and cannot finish at .500 or above.

The Mets loaded the bases in the first but couldn't score, then mounted another threat in the second when Cannizzaro singled and Roy McMillan doubled. John Boozer then replaced Culp. Fisher singled off Boozer's glove as Cannizzaro scored, but Boozer caught the next one to start the triple play.

Bobby Klaus lined one back the mound that Boozer grabbed, immediately spinning and throwing to Amaro at second to double off McMillan. Amaro then fired to first baseman Thomas, who beat Fisher back to the bag for out No. 3.

It was the fourth triple play of the season — all in the National League —and the second by the Phillies, tying the NL record. The Phillies executed a triple play against Houston, May 17.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Duke Snider's pinch-single in the eighth inning brought in the winning run Saturday as San Francisco edged Milwaukee 8-7 after blowing a six-run lead.

The victory moved the Giants 3½ games behind the National League - leading Philadelphia Phillies, who played a night game at New York.

Snider's single, a soft liner to center, followed a 410-foot triple by Jim Hart that greeted Bob Sadowski, the fourth Milwaukee pitcher.

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Aspromonte drove in four runs with four singles and right-hander Don Nottebart posted his third straight victory as the Houston Colts defeated the Cincinnati Reds 7-4 Saturday night.

Nottebart, 6-8, checked the Reds on six hits until Vada Pinson hit his second home run of the game, a two-run wallop in the eighth that cut the Colts' lead to 5-4. Hal Woodeshick relieved Nottebart and stopped the Reds the rest of the way.

Pirates 5, Cubs 4

CHICAGO (AP) —Bob Bailey raced home from third on Don Clendenon's infield single in the ninth inning, bringing the Pittsburgh Pirates a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

Bailey singled to open the ninth, moved to second on a single by Manny Mota and, two outs later, advanced to third on a wild pitch by reliever Lindy McDaniel.

Clendenon then hit a grounder into the shortstop hole. Andre Rodgers grabbed the ball and threw to third in an attempt to get Mota before Bailey crossed the plate. Mota, however, was safe and Bailey scored the clincher.

A battle of homers preceded the decisive rally.

Billy Williams and Billy Cowan each hit two-run homers in a four-run fourth inning that put the Cubs ahead 4-3.

Action Taken Against Sergeant Who Abused Recruit During Drill

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (AP) — Army spokesmen said Saturday that a sergeant has been demoted, fined and transferred because he kicked a recruit who was out of step during drill.

Sgt. I. C. Earl D. Pew was demoted to sergeant, fined $70 and transferred to another training company of Third Battalion, Third Training Regiment.

The action was taken under Article 15 of the Military Code of Justice, which allows the company commander to take action.

Sgt. Pew was accused of kicking Russel B. Noble of Minneapolis, Minn. The incident occurred Aug. 1.

Two days later, Noble collapsed from heat exhaustion and was taken to the base hospital. A doctor noticed a bruse on Noble's skin and asked him what happened.

The recruit told the doctor his sergeant had kicked him.

Army spokesmen said the doctor reported the incident to the company commander.

The arch is scheduled for completion next May. The bill was co-sponsored by Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo.

Hunters in Ohio rarely found bears and wolves there after 1825.

SCHOOL OPENS SOON— DRIVE SAFELY

It isn't that children mean to be careless . . . it's just that in their zest and vitality they sometimes forget to stop, look and listen before crossing the street. It isn't that we mean to be careless either, yet the very car we drive may be considered a lethal weapon and the consequences of our negligence could be fatal. It is our moral obligation to be extra alert these days when school children crowd the crosswalks!

CHECK YOURSELF ON THESE SAFE DRIVING TIPS...

- Be especially careful near schools.
- Obey all traffic signals and signs.
- Know all traffic rules.
- Have your car safety checked often.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

Pictures Speeded to The Democrat

1:22 In a remote spot in the country, a plane explodes, killing all aboard. As rescue workers carry the first bodies away, a U.P.I. photographer takes pictures of the tragedy and turns them over to waiting U.P.I. motorcycle riders. Negatives are developed and prints are made within minutes after the racing messengers reach a nearby town.

1:45 An operator slips a print of the plane crash picture onto a Trans-ceiver, a transmitting device tied to U.P.I.'s nationwide Telephoto-Facsimile network.

Wirephoto Link Connected Here

THIS WEEK The Democat-Capital introduced to readers the world's fastest news-picture service, United Pess International (UPI) facsimile.

Here's how it works: From sending stations in more than 100 cities throughout the country, as well as from across the Atlantic and Pacific and from South America, photographs of the day's biggest news events are rolling in to the newsrooms.

Within minutes of the moment the pictures are filed, in places hundreds or thousands of miles away, the Democrat-Capital will have them in its newsroom. The news photos of an event will appear the same day as the news dispatches reporting it.

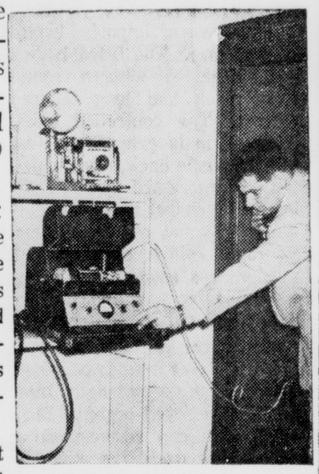

What makes this possible is the latest miracle of the science of modern communications, the United Press International facsimile system. This comprises a network woven of 30,000 miles of leased long distance telephone wires that crosses and crisscrosses the nation, and the UPI facsimile machine, an electronic device that in seven minutes can copy, at no matter what distance, any picture transmitted from any of a hundred points on those wires.

The vast web that these compose stretches from New York to San Francisco, from Minneapolis to the Mexican border. It links in an instant Seattle to Jacksonville, Montreal to San Diego. Connected with overseas radiophoto circuits, it can bring in newspictures from abroad to The Democrat-Capital in less time than it takes to smoke a cigarette.

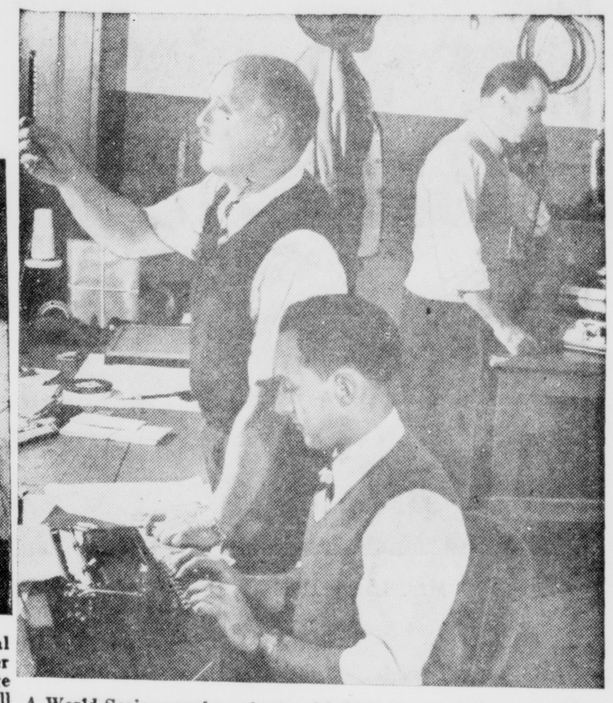

Facsimile itself, as a method of copying photographs, drawings or printed matter, has been in operation for some years. But until recently facsimile receiving machines would work only with facsimile sending machines over short distances or over circuits far different from those of the established transcontinental networks. Thus, to take advantage of the inherent speed and ease of handling of facsimile, it was necessary to have a machine compatible with the hundreds of photographic transmitting machines already in operation throughout the country. Otherwise, to receive directly from photographic transmitters, a picture first would have to be sent to a central point, copied as a photograph, then sent out again from that single inlet over a special facsimile circuit. The situation was somewhat like that of a city without mail boxes, where anyone wanting to send a letter would have to go all the way to the post office to do it.

United Press International research, carried out by the Long Laboratory, disposed of this problem, brought into existence a facsimile machine which could receive pictures direct from the existing nationwide UPI Telephoto Newspicture circuit, with its inlets in a hundred different cities. Not only did this make UPI facsimile the world's fastest system—because it eliminated the re-transmission step—but it also made UPI facsimile pictures the clearest. For whenever a photograph is re-photographed or retransmitted, some sharpness, some detail is lost. UPI facsimiles will be received at The Democrat-Capital from the original picture.

The flexibility of the UPI facsimile system, its ability to send a picture from any one of the scores of filing points on its network to the facsimile receiving machine in the newsroom of The Democrat-Capital, heightens the interest of the subjects of its pictures as well as their speed and clarity. It makes it as simple to provide pictures of events in cities and states near Sedalia as to deliver those of national and international importance. United Press International photo editors make the fullest use of this advantage to dispatch to every region of the country the pictures that it most wants to see. Pictures like that, the pictures of news events of the greatest interest to everyone who lives in this area is what The Democrat-Capital is now presenting readers.

A World Series requires plenty of behind-the-scenes action. In the basement of Yankee Stadium, United Press International Newspictures editor Harold Blumenfeld, left, and his crew transmit Series' picture highlights to client newspapers.

3:15 A cut is made, locked up in the forms, and the presses roll. Within two hours of the time U.P.I. took the picture, readers see it on the front page of their local newspaper, alongside the news story of the plane crash.

News Break Is Beginning Of a Picture

The beginning of the process that produces United Press International facsimile newspictures is the news break, the incident.

Say it is the crash of an airliner against the side of a mountain. If the disaster occurs within quick reach of one of the many U.P.I. newspictures bureaus, a staff cameraman will be on his way to the scene within moments of hearing the news. If the wreck lies too far away to get to in a short time, U.P.I. telephones its special photographic correspondent in the area, assigning him to get the pictures. Once taken, whether by a staff or special photographer, and developed and printed, these are rushed by car or motorcycle or plane to the closest U.P.I. Telephoto sending point.

There are more than a hundred of these strategically-spotted throughout the country: offices in business buildings or rooms in newspaper plants or television stations. In them is a U.P.I. Telephoto Trans-ceiver. It is a machine of somewhat the same shape as a typewriter and slightly larger. Like a typewriter, too, it has a roller, and around this the print of the newspicture is clamped. The Trans-ceiver, an electronic device, does the rest.

What it does is this: starting in an upper corner of the photograph, it shines a tiny beam of light, one as fine as a hair, on a spot in the picture. If that spot is white or a gray, the reflection of the light beam will generate within the machine, and transfer to a telephone line connected with it, an electrical impulse of a certain force. If the spot is darker, the impulse will be of contrasting strength. The telephone circuit to which the Trans-ceiver is connected is a leased wire, reserved exclusively for U.P.I. newspicture transmissions and is a part of a 30,000-mile network that spreads over the entire country. To this network a U. P. I. facsimile receiving machine in the newspaper newsroom also is linked. In this machine the impulse generated by the spot on the news photograph of the plane wreck is duplicated. This

You'll always find U.P.I. photographers with cameras ready at the nation's big sports events. Here's one set for action as he focuses his 35 mm. camera, with 800 mm. lens, on a World Series play at Yankee Stadium.

United Press International photographers are found in all parts of the world in their quest of newspictures. Here a veteran U.P.I. lensman covers a Roman Catholic celebration at the Vatican from a high vantage point over St. Peter's Square.

For a special-angle shot from a rooftop ledge high above San Francisco's Market Street, a United Press International cameraman ventures to the very edge. But you'll note he has roped himself to a roof bolt, just in case.

Taking pictures of California floods from the top of a levee, this U.P.I. photographer keeps as dry as possible on a rainy day by wearing rubber boots and a head-umbrella that leaves his hands free to manipulate his camera.

Machines used to transmit pictures around the world and to this newspaper are designed especially for U.P.I. Newspictures. Here an engineer makes adjustments on one of the electronic machines in the U.P.I. Telephoto laboratory in New York.

Four-footed truck: When a Big Bertha camera and extra supplies prove too heavy for one man to carry, this United Press International photographer hires a burro to transport him and his load to the site of a Nevada nuclear bomb test.

For a fish's eye view of teen-agers diving from a city dock, a United Press International news photographer gets into the swim himself, but still keeps his camera dry. U.P.I. lensmen are constantly on the lookout for different and unusual angles to add extra interest to the pictures they take.

The New York editorial offices of United Press International Newspictures hum with activity 24 hours a day as editors, photographers, darkroom technicians and Telephoto engineers direct coverage of world news in pictures and fill special photo requirements of individual newspapers.

Mrs. Larry Richard Dirck

Miss Delores Ann Geiser Weds Larry Richard Dirck Aug. 1

The summer wedding of Miss Delores Ann Geiser to Mr. Larry Richard Dirck took place at eleven o'clock Saturday morning, Aug. 1 at Sacred Heart Church. The Rev. Francis C. Laudick, pastor, was celebrant at nuptial high mass and read the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Geiser, 1101 West Main. The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Norval Dirck, Knob Noster.

Altar boys were Mr. Carl Bopp, Mr. Richard Bahner, Mr. David Wessing and Mr. Joe Eschbacher.

White chrysanthemums tied with satin bows formed the altar background. Emerald palms were at the ends of the communion rail. Pews of the center aisle were marked with white satin bows. A white carpet covered the bridal aisle.

Mrs. Earl F. Paxton, organist, played liturgical wedding music and liturgical processional and recessional. The girls' choir sang "The Saint Rita Mass." Before mass, Mr. Al Domingue sang "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother." At offertory, he sang "Ave Maria," at communion, "Panis Angelicus." As the bride placed a bouquet of pink roses at the Blessed Virgin's altar, Mr. Domingue sang "Mother, at Your Feet is Kneeling."

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore a traditional wedding gown of silk faced peau de soie and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The slender bodice was designed with a rounded neckline and above-elbow sleeves. A plastron of lace highlighted with pearls, framed the neck. On the bell shaped skirt front, the lace applique was repeated in a long floral spray which extended to the hem. Unpressed pleats at the back, finished at the center waist with a butterfly bow, released the skirt fullness. A watteau train extended to chapel length.

Flower shaped petals of lace, edged with pearls, held her short pouf veil of illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and ivy, centered with a white orchid. She also wore a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Karen Kramer, cousin of the bride was maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Marscha Evans and Miss Julie Dirck, sister of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid. They wore matching gowns of petal pink peau de soie. The slim bodices were styled with round front necklines, tapered to V's in back and tiny cap sleeves. Unpressed pleats, released from the waists, formed the fullness of their floor length belled skirts. They wore headdresses of fabric roses with circle veiling in the same shade. Their slippers were tinted petal pink and they wore mitts on their hands. The maid of honor and bridesmaid carried cascade bouquets of deep pink Sensation roses. Junior bridesmaid carried long stemmed pink roses with pink ribbon tied in sweetheart knots.

Flower girl was Miss Debra Moon, cousin of the bride. Her gown and headpiece were designed like those of the other bridal attendants. She carried a basket of pink rose petals.

Best man was Mr. James Dirck, cousin of the bridegroom. Mr. Peter Daniels was groomsman. Ushers were Mr. Bob Miller, Tipton, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Bob Forsyth, Knob Noster, cousin of the bridegroom.

For the wedding, the bride's mother chose a light blue sheath crepe dress with white accessories. The mother of the bridegroom selected a sky blue pleated dress with harmonizing accessories. Ivory tone Cymbidium orchids were worn with their costumes.

A reception for more than 100 guests was held at Holiday Inn after the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with floor length lace over pink. Pink satin bows caught the lace at intervals. The three tiered cake was garlanded with smilax and pink sweetheart roses. Two three branch candelabra held lighted pink tapers.

The punch table, covered like the bridal table, held a centered punch bowl, flanked with two branch candelabra holding pink tapers.

Serving at the bridal table were Miss Linda Freese, Miss Carol Carroll and Miss Janie Whitfield, the latter a cousin of the bride. At the punch table, guests were served by Miss Arlene Dunham. Guests were listed by Miss Marie Anderson. Each reception assistant wore a pastel dress and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

At four o'clock that afternoon, dinner was served to the bridal party and members of the immediate families at Flat Creek Inn. A white ring milk glass centerpiece, holding white pompon chrysanthemums and pink roses, and candle holders, loaned by Mrs. Ray Dirck, were used to decorate the tables. Pink candles lighted the scene.

For her going away costume, the bride chose a green linen dress with accessories of beige. At the shoulder of her costume, she wore the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet. After traveling through southern states, the couple will be at home at 803 West Broadway.

The bride was graduated from Sacred Heart High School in 1962. The bridegroom, a 1958 graduate of Knob Noster High School, is employed at Universal CIT Credit Co.

---

A rehearsal dinner for the bridal party and members of the family was given by the parents of the bridegroom at Holiday Inn.

---

Mrs. Andrew Kramer and daughter, Karen, honored the bride at a kitchen shower.

Each guest brought a favorite recipe, which was read by the bride-to-be before opening gifts.

Pink and white wedding bell cookies with pink ice cream and punch were served.

---

A miscellaneous shower was given for the bride by Miss Marscha Evans at the home of her mother, Mrs. Paul Evans, 251 West Main.

The gift table was centered with white wedding bells and pink flowers.

Individually iced cakes, garnished with pink roses, were served with punch.

The bridegroom's parents gave a miscellaneous shower at their home in Knob Noster for the couple.

Cake, ice cream and punch were served.

The gift table was decorated in pink and white.

Yellow chrysanthemums decorated the cake and a miniature bridal couple highlighted the highest tier. A greenery encircled punch bowl was flanked by crystal candelabra holding lighted white tapers.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Gale Curtright, Jr., played an organ medley and Mrs. Howard Goss Johnson, III, sang "Be Thou With Them" and "Prayer."

Mr. Allen Robert Groebe, Bartlesville, Okla., served his brother as best man. Mr. Jere D. Cravans, Tulsa, Okla., was groomsman. Ushers were Mr. Howard Goss Johnson, III, Kansas City, Mr. Jim Carr, Knob Noster, Mr. Ronald P. Krueger, St. Louis, and Mr. David R. Jewell, Bird City, Kan.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Herbert Gile, Kansas City. Mrs. Thomas Oliver, Raytown, and Miss Margaret Aldridge, Kansas City, attended gifts.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The bride's table was accented with white majestic daisies and smilax greenery surrounding the cake and clustered through silver table candelabra.

Serving were Miss Connie Cook, Des Moines, Iowa, and Mrs. Jim Christen, Rolla.

Following a wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Overland Park, Kan.

---

After the wedding reception, Mr. and Mrs. Gould S. Campbell, Kansas City, entertained the bridal party and families at a candlelight patio party at their home.

---

The Valencia Room at Plaza 111, Kansas City, was the scene of the rehearsal dinner Aug. 6, when the mother of the bridegroom entertained in honor of the couple.

Twenty-eight guests were seated at a U shaped table, which held tall black wrought iron candelabra with pale pink princess tapers. Pale pink and bright red carnations and lemon leaves cascaded from the candelabra onto the linen. Smaller black wrought iron candelabra with garlands of lemon leaves and pink and red carnations were arranged down the center of the side tables.

The bride wore a cotton brocade dress in pink and white. She was presented a corsage of pale pink and bright red feathered carnations.

Claims Largest Convention Hall

Tom Seppy
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—President Johnson will become the Democrat Party's standard bearer in Convention Hall, the largest indoor arena in the world, best known as the site of the annual Miss America Pageant.

Johnson will accept the Democratic nomination for president near the spot reserved each year for the crowning of Miss America.

Only a short distance to his right will be an area where in 1939, John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers got into a fist fight and stomped out of an American Federation of Labor convention to found what became the CIO.

Straight ahead, beyond the speaker's stand, was the finish line of the Greyhound racing track which did big business in 1934 until state authorities got around to declaring dog racing illegal in New Jersey.

Thousands of Events

This resort's huge hall has housed thousands of events since its opening on May 31, 1929, but the Democratic National Convention will be the first major political conclave to be held there.

For it, the Democratic National Convention Committee intends to set up 20,000 folding chairs on the main floor.

Staged in the municipally owned and operated hall during the past 35 years have been football games, track meets, prize fights jousting matches, ice hockey, horse shows, horse and bicycle races, polo and baseball.

The block-long, 13-story-high hall has also been the site for ballroom dances, "walkathons" operettas, shows from Broadway, a pony express race, motion pictures, school children's field days, daredevil auto driving exhibitions, an indoor world's fair," and almost every year, an ice show.

It has also doubled as a "cathedral" on several occasions. In 1940, during the Methodist Jurisdictional Conference the largest seated audience ever to gather in the auditorium—more than 30,000—attended a religious service. In 1958 and 1960, stand-up Catholic Masses were sung in the hall, the former to mark Our Lady of Lourdes pageant, and the latter, attended by some 50,000 worshippers, during the Marian Year celebration.

The $15 million hall, covering seven acres of ground and capable of seating 35,000 in the main auditorium alone, Vice President Charles F. Curtis made the dedicatory address.

The opening convention was that of the National Electric Light Association. The utility people were celebrating, according to their publicity, "Light's Golden Jubilee."

What the publicity men meant was that 50 years before, in 1897, Thomas A. Edison had invented the incandescent electric lamp. They really didn't mean Edison had invented light, they pointed out.

The delegates packed up their light bulbs, dynamos and holding company stock brochures and went home, leaving the auditorium for use of the American Hospital Association.

Nobody noticed anything funny in the fact that with the departure of the hospital people, the next convention to move into the hall was the National Funeral Directors Association.

The hall has been a background for the dignified deliberations of the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church and, without straining a girder, has worked out well for the less restrained doings of such organizations as the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

It served as an Air Corps training center during World War II.

Nobody Knows How Many

Conventions come and go so frequently and so swiftly in Atlantic City that no tally is available of the number staged in the hall between 1929 and the present.

There are no columns in the main auditorium the roof being supported by the largest trusses in the world. In fact, they are so large that a sliding joint is built around the roof to allow a three-inch space for expansion and contraction with changes in temperatures.

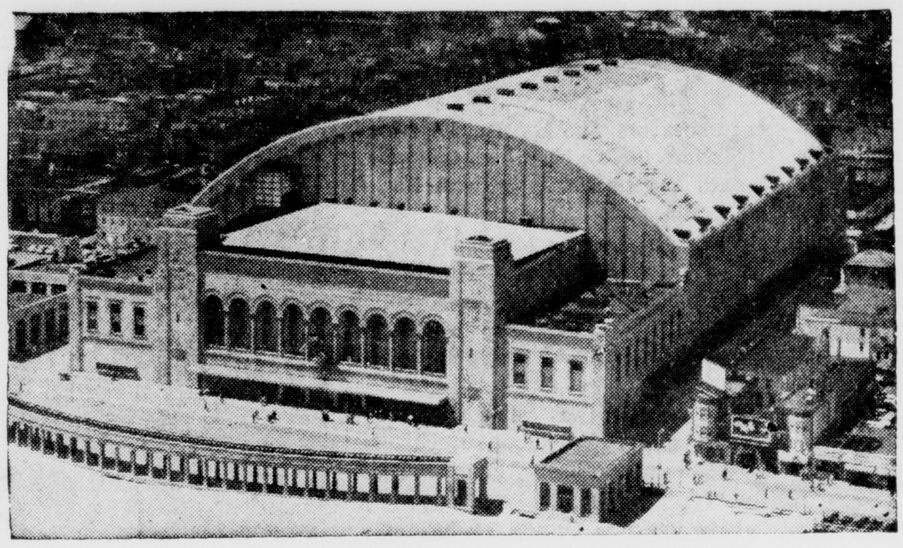

Speaking of temperautres, delegates to the Democratic convention won't have to worry about the resort's August heat when they're inside the building. The main hall, 34 meeting rooms and ballroom are air-conditioned.

Music for the delegates' entertainment will be played on the world's largest pipe organ. It contains 32,913 pipes, with seven manuals in the main console and five in a movable console. Its largest pipe is 64 feet long and the smallest only 3/16 of an inch.

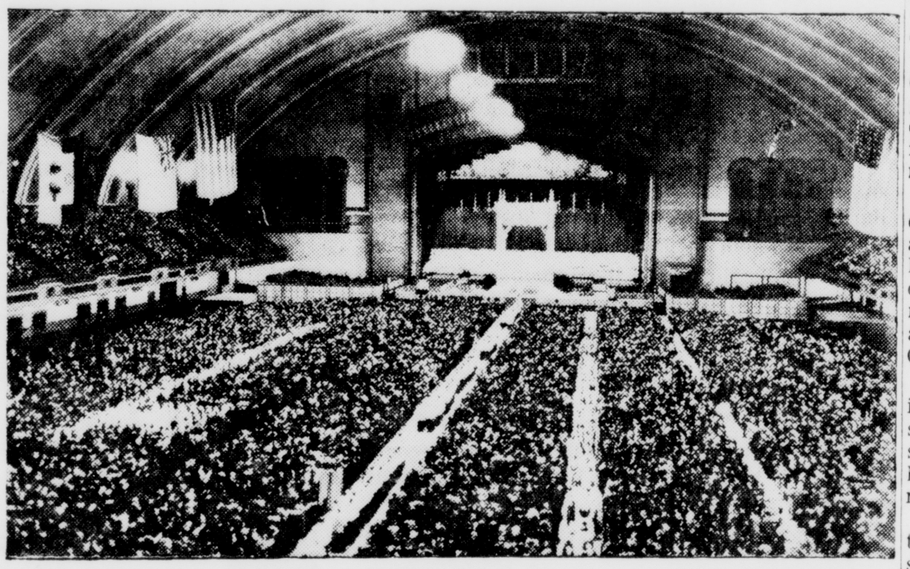

The ballroom on the hall's second floor has a seating capacity of 5,000. During the convention it will be used for caucuses and as a VIP lounge.

Webster's Other Book

The popular "Blue-Backed Speller" also was composed by Noah Webster, who prepared the two-volume "American Dictionary of the English language." His speller, which sold about 100 million copies in a century, holds the record as America's all-time bestseller, next to the Bible.

Computers Land Roles In Programs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television's 1964-65 season looms as the year of the computer.

The miracle machines are not new in television. But soon they will be blossoming forth as actors.

The star of a new CBS comedy series, "My Living Doll," has a computer in the title role. The character looks like a beautiful human female, but is a disguised machine programmed to exhibit every human characteristic except emotion.

Then there is "Thrush," the international cartel of evil which NBC's "Man from U.N.C.L.E." will fight each week. The scheming head of this vicious organization is a computer, programmed by the villainous agents to dream up dreadful plots for the brave, good agents of "Uncle" (the crime-fighting organization) to foil just before the final commercial.

Computers will turn up as dress extras and minor characters in ABC's "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," a flashing computer will spew out information in the science fiction and adventure tales, including "The Outer Limits."

ABC, once again, will launch its entire fall schedule of new shows in a one week period starting Sept. 14, arriving on the home screens first with the most.

But NBC's opening gambit is to spread the new shows and seasonal premieres over a longer period —through September and into October — one night at a time. All of its Monday evening shows, new and returning, will start on Oct. 5; all its Friday night efforts on Sept. 25, and so on.

Actually, the first new show to move into the network lineup will be NBC's star-studded "Rogues," on Sunday night, Sept. 13. The adventure series with Charles Boyer, David Niven and Gig Young will replace the "Show of the Week" dramatic series which always attracted disappointingly small audiences.

They Curdle Dispositions

After Earthlings receive their initial greetings from occupants of some far off planet, reached finally in the probe of space, what will be the theme of conversation once communication is established?

There's an even chance our spacemen will encounter the same counterparts familiar on their own global scene from day to day. These are the chronic complainers, the two-legged gab machines, the thoughtless individuals who never fail to find targets for criticism.

Sometimes the antics of others irritate persons who have become set in their ways like senior citizens whom the youngsters consider too ill-humored or petulant.

Yet even the young persons may become provoked frequently by drivers who casually straddle the lines between spaces on Sedalia's parking lots; by characters who talk out loud at the movies, who whisper during a speaking or singing program at a civic club meeting, who chew on their finger nails during a funeral sermon.

And what about those gals who blow cigaret smoke in your face at lunch counters and in check lines at the supermarkets?

Soon we will encounter the kooks who play transistor radios full blast at the football games in Columbia.

Of course we always have those eager beavers who honk their horns at drivers in front of them the split second the traffic light starts turning green.

These are only a few pet peeves which grate nerves and curdle dispositions. There are many more every individual can name. But the worst is the rumormonger whose other name is gossip.

Our attention was called to an unknown author's quotation which appeared in print recently and is timely for reproduction:

"My name is Gossip. I have no respect for justice; I ruin without killing; I tear down homes; I break hearts and wreck lives. I am wily, cunning, malicious, and I gather strength with age. I make my way where greed, mistrust and dishonor are unknown. I feed on good and bad alike. My victims are as numerous as the sands of the sea, and often as innocent. I never forgive and seldom forget. My name is Gossip."

How true it is that a cruel story runs on wheels, and every hand oils the wheels as they run.

Will it be the same on Mars, Jupiter and Venus?

Why can't we believe in the best instead of the worst of every person here on Earth before we take off into the unknown?

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Dr. C. D. Osborne, who holds the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, reserve officer, has returned from two weeks at Little Rock, Ark., where he attended the Citizens Military Training camp.

— 1939 —

The Hughesville Board of Education has announced the receipt of a grant for $8,500 from the Farm Security Administration. The money will be expended in construction of a combination vocational agriculture shop and bus garage, and the addition of two rooms to the new grade and high school building now nearing completion.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Mrs. George McLaughlin, of 404 North Prospect avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Ed McLaughlin, of Otterville, and Miss Alice McLaughlin, of Idaho, who were motoring to visit with relatives in Hutchison, Kans., narrowly escaped injury when their automobile slid from the road into a small stream near Manhattan, Kan.

— 1924 —

The City Light and Traction Co. is preparing for Missouri State Fair crowds, bringing out the summer cars and employing a large force of new motormen for the week. Forty-two men are now employed as motormen, according to W. A. Richardson, superintendent of the street railway department. Saturday cars will begin going one way around the loop.

London's Savoy Theater was especially built for the productions of Gilbert and Sullivan.

ANDERSON (S.C.) INDEPENDENT:

Learning From Feathered Friends. — We think there's a lesson to be learned from our feathered friends, but we're not quite sure what it is.

It seems that scores of dead thrushes were found littering up the grounds of the National Institutes of Health in Washington, and officials became quite alarmed.

At first they figured that the birds had been killed by insecticides, but on investigation they discovered that the birds had met their deaths as a result of drunkenness.

What happened was that the thrushes had eaten crabapples that had frozen, thawed, and then fermented. The inebriated birds had killed themselves by crashing into walls and other obstacles.

The moral, we have concluded, is this: Don't eat fermented crab-apples. But if you can't stay off the stuff, at least don't drive.

What A Man!

Truth is stranger than fiction, so the saying goes, and it goes for history, too.

Who would think that Thomas Jefferson, third president of the United States and writer of the Declaration of Independence, would be the one to introduce French fried potatoes to North America?

Yet, he was the fellow. Not only that, he introduced spaghetti, vanilla and ice cream, too.

The beaver, except for the South American capybara, is the world's largest rodent.

LBJ Still Pondering Vice President

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Governors Pat Brown of California and Mathew Welsh of Indiana, both Democrats, were entertained overnight at the White House after the dinner for U. N. Secretary General U Thant, and had the privilege of a two-hour breakfast talk with the President.

They found him very frank as he talked about the problems of Viet Nam and the Congo, anti-poverty in the United States, and about his own experiences as youth administrator during the depression days in Texas. Gov. John Connally of Texas, he said, had been a graduate of that youth program. It had rescued many young men and he hoped the anti-poverty program would rescue more.

But both governors came away with the impression that the President still had not solved the No. 1 political problem of the Democratic party, namely whom he wanted as his vice president. He remarked that the governors were still in the race and the vice president could come from California.

He told Gov. Brown, who will make one of the nominating speeches for LBJ at Atlantic City, to "Make the same kind of a nominating speech you made at the Gridiron Club in 1959."

But he gave the impression of still pondering who his running mate should be.

As the two governors left, Brown remarked to Welsh: "He's an absolutely dedicated man. I think he'll make an even better President after he's re-elected."

Probing The Price of Food

Most important Washington development for the housewife to watch is the forthcoming probe of food marketing. It will be investigated by a commission representing the Senate, the House, and the public.

Chief instigators of the probe are Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., and Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman. The latter points out:

"Such a commission is needed when we find 2,000 men buying 90 per cent of the approximate $70 billion worth of food that moves to the American table."

One problem the commission will dig into is the fact that more and more chain stores have set up their own processing plants to supply meat, vegetables, canned goods. This means fewer outlets for the farmer, less competition between processors, and it may or may not mean higher prices for the housewife.

Near Washington, for instance, ten canneries operated in Frederick County fifteen years ago. Today there is only one cannery left.

In Harford County, Md., there were nine companies packing corn over a decade ago, now there is only one left. On the eastern shore of Maryland, the biggest canner, Phillips, has sold out to Consolidated Grocers.

In Baltimore, there were formerly ten canneries. Today there are only three.

They have disappeared chiefly because of chain store operations.

Note — The White House and senators are still maneuvering to pick the right counsel and chief investigator for the food commission. Secretary Freeman points out that his assistant secretary in charge of marketing, George Mehren, is one of the most dedicated experts on this subject. Although he once served as a consultant to the trade, he has not tried to influence the choice of commission staff.

China In Poor Shape To Start Any Big Trouble

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — The Red Chinese are not well enough grounded economically to support any kind of major military enterprise against the United States in Southeast Asia.

While farm output is up markedly from the disastrous low levels of 1959-62, China's production today is barely back to 1957 figures. Yet population meantime has increased by 60 to 70 millions. Substantial imports of grain are still required to provide a minimum diet for many.

A U. S. State Department official says China's industry today is operating well below the 1960 peak, after severe cutbacks in the intervening years.

The overreaching efforts of the ill-fated Great Leap Forward produced the fiasco of the early 1960s. Officials here indicate that Peking now is planning more modestly and sensibly, and slowly sorting out the chaos which followed the Great Leap.

Nevertheless, many large industrial plants are working far below capacity, and hoards of smaller ones are either just skimping along or are shut down.

Red China never has recovered from the mass exodus of Russian technicians in 1960 when the Sino-Soviet ideological split first developed seriously. It does not have the trained technical manpower even to make the necessary adjustments involved in heavy retrenchment, let alone cope with a growing industry.

Edwin P. Jones, a U. S. economist familiar with Chinese affairs, writes in a publication called "Problems of Communism."

"China's prospects for relieving this situation quickly do not seem bright. . . . It no longer hopes for rapid economic growth, but rather seeks to achieve stability while trying gradually to create the conditions necessary for renewed expansion and modernization."

Jones notes that Red China's economic problems are made more troublesome by the uncertainties of the "inevitably approaching succession."

Most of the present Communist Chinese leaders are in their 60's and must soon give way to younger men. The internal jockeying for positions among prospective successors is undoubtedly causing great ferment in top ruling circles.

A sturdy cliche asserts that totalitarian societies now and then seek foreign adventures to distract their depressed peoples from the stresses and strains of life at home.

In the view of at least one American official, it is unlikely that such considerations alone would drive Peking to mix more haevily now in the Vietnamese conflict.

As he sees it, distraction from economic distress was more necessary two years ago than it is today. Furthermore, he believes such an effort could be achieved more easily and more safely by huffing and puffing against the Chinese nationalists on Formosa — or some other standard target.

The Communist assaults on our destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin are seen in high quarters here as altogether too foolhardy and risky to have been undertaken for such a purpose of distraction. This assumes, of course, that Peking was exerting maximum influence upon the North Vietnamese to launch the attacks.

If the Chinese did play a key role in spurring the attacks, U. S. government officials are as puzzled about their motives as about any which North Vietnamese leader Ho Chi Minh has had.

In a kind of desperation, the authorities in Washington seem inevitably to come back to the notion that the Reds, whether the dominant influence was Hanoi or Peking, were bent on testing us and expected to find us soft.

"Send Me" Letters

A "send me" letter in the mail
Mom gets one every day,
She knows they're coming without fail
While her camper is away;
No matter what they take along
When they get to camp they find
The things they have are always wrong
Or they've left some things behind;
Mom gets a hurried SOS
They need some money fast.
Their money is daily growing less
Not long now will it last—
"I need two-fifty right away,"
Mom smiled and wondered why,
The letter then went on to say
A camp T-shirt to buy—
"Of course" went on the letter
"If that's too much I guess
"Though two-fifty would be better
"I could make out with less.
"But I need a dollar very bad
"For this T-shirt you see
"Is something that I haven't had
"And it means a lot to me."
She counted her money Mother knew
This she hadn't done before,
And found that a dollar would really do
If she couldn't wiggle out more—
Her brother went to camp as well,
And letters always came,
Everything was really swell,
But the "send-me" was the same;
An experience he had though,
On the first night, that was rough,
For he found something he didn't know
Was packed in with his stuff—
He borrowed the sleeping bag from Sis
And as he got in it that night
"His feet touched something—"What was this?"
It didn't feel just right—
So he reached down and pulled it out,
A house coat with lace trim,
There were howls of laughter all about,
So that belonged to him—
What a nice garment for a fellow
To bring to camp they said,
Lace trimmed, stripes white and yellow
Tucked in his camping bed—
He got a ribbing every day
When for inspection took his place
Someone was always sure to say,
"Do your pants have their ruffled lace?"
At home Sis was in quite a stew
Nowhere her house coat could be found,
Her mother laundered it, she knew,
And stuck it away somewhere around,
Now if she did Mom didn't recall,
But she was getting all the blame
Until she was cleared of it all
The day the letter from Brother came,
Seems all little campers' mothers
Get in some awful plights,
She's just like all of the others
When her young camper writes
She's happy for the letters—yes—
Yet she knows what they will be,
Exactly, what she can never quite guess—
But she's sure they will start: "Send me."

FINDING THE WAY

Revitalize Your Faith

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"They're as weary as a piece of tired lettuce." That was Muriel Lester's vivid description of the poverty-stricken hopelessness of the London slums of a generation ago. She might have been talking about the weariness of faith of many of our own residents of affluent Canada and United States.

This poverty of faith tolerates a kind of apathy, a dullness of spirit which never gets its hackles up, never gets excited and never sees the point to the struggle. This boredom besets those who permit vast areas of cities to be untouched by any hope and play ostrich with the educational and social problems of their communities. This is the apathy which defeats.

It is pitiable just to be pathetic. It is tragic to be apathetic.

It is decent to be sympathetic. It is better to be empathetic.

It is noble to feel pathos. It is best to believe passionately.

It is not only the "how" of believing that matters; it is the object of our faith that makes the difference.

The disciples of Jesus knew something of this weariness. They had been fishing all night, and had come home with empty nets. Jesus sent them out again and this time they caught fish. Up to this point, it's just a remarkable fish story. Then comes the reason for the tale. Jesus said to Simon: "Don't be afraid, Simon. From now on your catch will be men." So they brought the boats to shore, left everything and followed Him.

Suddenly the weariness was gone and action followed. Now the apathy had vanished and they gained a vocation.

Before this they had believed some things ABOUT Jesus; now they believed IN Him.

When those who should love justice and freedom are apathetic, they leave the field open for the cynical despot.

It is this recovery of passion which has always typified those who have achieved. Automation threatens to take the sense of personal worth from man. Political cynicism drains the lifestream of social dedication. The very complexity of many situations makes too many of us shrug our shoulders and look the other way. Along with communism and social and political ills, modern man also faces the sheer misery of boredom.

If our biggest difficulty is lack of faith — a lack of faith in God and in God's purposes for man — then the evidences of that apathy will be seen in the whole moral climate.

Richard Luecke has spoken of the "difference which may sometimes be seen side by side on the same wall in the painted-over pathos on the faces of Roualt's clowns and the profound and peaceable passion in the faces of his Christ." It is the peaceable passion, this determined dedication, which can drive out the pathetic boredom which besets too many of us. It turns tired men into dedicated men.

Fancy Wrapping Paper

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY—To make your fancy wrapping paper, take a large sheet of shelf paper, and shave several different colors of crayons on it and place another piece of paper on top of the first one. Cover with a sheet of newspaper and press with a warm iron. Pull the two sheets of paper apart and you will have lovely and unusual paper for your gifts.—BERNEDETTE

GIRLS—This is a fun thing to try and would make a conversation piece for any party. Be sure the crayon shavings are very fine. Mine looked like an abstract painting. Who knows, the recipient of the gift may frame part of the wrapping paper and hang it on the wall. I also wrote "Happy Birthday, Mary" all over a piece of white shelf paper, put a plain piece of paper on top and pressed over with a warm iron. The wax penetrated the paper, it did not smear and made a very nice personal wrapping paper. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I know many of the girls have a difficult time pulling on their girdles during the hot weather. Just slip on over the hips (not necessarily up to waist) a pair of nylon panties. The girdle will go on like a whiz and the panties can be easily pulled off if they were not pulled up too far.—MRS. W.R.Z.

DEAR POLLY — To prevent spray starch from sticking to the iron I spray the piece to be ironed on the wrong side and iron on the right side. The iron always moves freely and does not stick.—MRS. H. S.

GIRLS — Some manufacturers recommend that dark fabrics always be sprayed with starch on the wrong side.— POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Our bed slats fell out periodically. We purchased old fashioned screen door hooks and eyes at the dime store and inserted the eye in the side board near the end of the slat and its corresponding hook at a proper distance from the eye in the side of the slat. With the slat hooked to the bed, there is real security.—MRS. G. C.

DEAR POLLY — I hope my hint helps others as much as theirs have helped me. Last summer when getting ready to play tennis I discovered that all my tennis balls had lost their bounce. My father showed me how to revitalize them. The balls had not been properly stored and had absorbed moisture which had ruined their sponginess. He first pre-heated the oven for a few minutes, turned it off and let it stand a while. Then father put the tennis balls in the oven and in no time at all they bounced like new.—MARCIA

GIRLS — Sounds well worth a try. But also try and find a tennis ball without any bounce when you need one—I couldn't. POLLY

Tax Insight On Home Sales By the Elderly

According to Edwin O. Bookwalter, District Director, the St. Louis District of the Internal Revenue Service has received many inquiries concerning the sale of a personal residence by a taxpayer who is 65 years of age or older.

For example, a taxpayer 65 years or over sells his personal residence that he has owned and used as his personal residence for periods aggregating 5 years or more of an 8 year period ending on the date of sale. He is allowed to exclude from his income that portion of the gain which bears the same ratio to the total amount of such gain as $20,000 bears to the adjusted sales price of the personal residence. This exclusion is available only once in his lifetime.

For example, a taxpayer over 65, whose residence cost him $12,000 and who sells it for $30,000 can exclude two - thirds of the capital gain (20,000 x 18,000) or $12,000 from his taxable income. Only 50 per cent of the remaining $6,000 gain ($3,000) is to be included in taxable income.

sets in motion the facsimile copying process.

The minute shaft of light shining on the photograph at the point of sending does not, of course, linger on any single spot. It moves slowly along a horizontal track below the whirling cylinder, from one end to the other. In the seven minutes the movement requires, the light-shaft scans with its microscopic eye every speck of the entire photograph revolving above it. To human vision, each such speck would be almost invisible, for each consists of a square measuring only one hundredth of an inch, smaller even than a single grain of fine table salt.

United Press International uses portable darkrooms like this at big athletic events, disaster scenes or wherever normal photographic facilities are not available. Here a U.P.I. printer checks a print for Telephoto transmission in the U.P.I. mobile tent.

As the Trans-ceiver at a distant point on the Telephoto network scans the photograph particle by particle, the facsimile receiver in the office of the Sedalia Democrat - Capital, responding to the impulses, copies each particle instantly and so completes its own picture at exactly the moment the sending ends. Transmission and reception run a dead heat.

The process of the copying by facsimile is accomplished by what might be thought of as an invisible electric spark. In facsimile the paper comes in long strips, somewhat narrower than typewriter paper, and is specially treated by chemicals to record on its surface the passing of an electrical charge through it.

The paper passes in front of a cylinder revolving in perfect synchronization with the one on the transmitting machine. Winding around the facsimile cylinder is a shallow, sharp-edged ridge. Its shape is somewhat like that of a tall letter S laid on its side. It curls around the cylinder from one end to the other, making one complete turn as it does so.

In front of the cylinder and paper a thin blade fits, horizontally, across the surface of the paper, like the edge of a ruler. The ridge on the cylinder is a negative pole of electricity. The blade, into which the impulses from the Telephoto wires feed, is a positive pole. Where ridge and blade cross, the impulses, like an invisible spark, jump from one to the other, through the paper, leaving on the paper a trace of color, a near-black. These traces, or dots, vary in intensity, appear either light or dark, according to the strength of the impulse, the fatness or thinness of the invisible spark.

As the ridge on the cylinder revolves beneath the paper, it presses against every point along the knife-blade above the paper, and with one revolution copies a single straight line of impulses. The paper then edges upward to leave the line below blank, and the cylinder revolves to print in this strip another line of the picture and then another, until every spot on the picture is covered.

The action suggests that of a lawn mower, where the curved blades, as they rotate, touch every point along the straight blade against which their edges scrape.

The result is a mosaic of 630,000 dots, some faint, some strong, all so close together as to be indistinguishable as dots. Together they provide a sharp, clear copy of the original photograph. The method, carried out with the precision which only electronic science can attain, resembles the copying of the design on the face of a coin by placing paper over it and drawing pencil lines across the paper. In this simple operation, where there are bumps beneath the paper, the pencil makes a heavy mark, and where there are blank spaces, it skips them. Facsimil is a corresponding procedure: the strong electrical impulses represent the bumps, the weaker impulses the blank, or nearly blank, spots in the picture.

CONVENTIONS AND CRISES/ The Democrats

by Don Oakley and Ed Kudlaty

For one man, the road to the 33rd national convention of the Democratic Party in 1960 was decided upon the day the 32nd convention ended.

In 1956, young Sen. John Fitzgerald Kennedy of Massachusetts had narrowly missed being nominated for vice president.

Now the goal he had set for himself in 1960 was the presidential nomination. His achieving of that prize, and eventually of the presidency itself, is a classic example of how to succeed in American politics by really trying.

Thanks partly to a personal fortune, in larger measure to an efficient team of talented and dedicated lieutenants (captained by his brother Robert), but most of all to the force of his own zeal and personality, Kennedy swept all the important primary elections in the spring of 1960.

For he knew that it was only by winning in the primaries that he could make the doubtful party bosses sit up and take notice. It was in the Wisconsin and West Virginia primaries that Kennedy knocked out his most active opponent, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and, so he believed, settled the question of whether a Roman Catholic had a chance for the presidency.

There were two other important contenders when the convention began in Los Angeles in July: Senate majority leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas and Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri. Though Kennedy came to the convention with a solid 600 votes (761 were needed to win), both hoped to stall him at that figure, then reap the benefit of a switch away from him on later ballots.

There was one other candidate who was not a candidate—Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, the party's choice in '52 and '56. And for a time it almost looked as if the thousands of worshipping supporters who demonstrated for him outside the Los Angeles Sports Arena would sweep him to the nomination by main force. Not since Willkie in 1940 had there been such a display of grassroots enthusiasm for a man. But Stevenson became convinced too late.

Kennedy, having picked up more delegates as the convention proceeded, won the nomination on the first ballot. He then surprised everyone by picking his chief opponent, Johnson, as his running mate.

Kennedy and Johnson went on to win the election over their GOP rivals, Richard M. Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge, in one of the closest races in history. The "New Frontier" was in, but just barely.

Then, on the 1035th day of his presidency, two bullets fired by a maniac wiped out John Kennedy's life, with all its brilliance, with all its promise.

THE END

Fires of Red Revolution Dying

EDITOR'S NOTE — Old men and old ideas still run the Communist movement, but the fires of revolution are dying. Trapped in rigid doctrines no longer valid in a changing world, the party leadership struggles to adjust and preserve its rule.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

World Communism's leadership today has hardening of the arteries.

The Communist wall dividing Berlin is symptomatic of one of the world movements' basic ailments. Leaders of Communism, often prisoners of 19th century conceptions, have constructed walls against 20th century political and social ideas.

The average age of the top leaders in the Chinese Communist hierarchy is 67, the oldest regime in terms of the age of any Red nation.

The West has its share of older men in top leadership. President Charles de Gaulle of France is 74; Chancellor Erhard of West Germany, 67; Prime Minister Douglas-Home of Britain, 61. But there is a big difference.

Western presidents and prime ministers are not frozen into the leadership of their nations. Their parties and their notions have not been continously in control. They are subject to dynamic clashes of ideas and reflect popular opinion and the temper of the times.

Today, 14 countries in the world are ruled by Communist parties. The oldest ruler, Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam, is 74. The youngest at a brash 39 is Fidel Castro of Cuba — whose youth and unmanageability are a problem to his patrons abroad.

If one excludes Castro and 48-year-old Umzhagin Tsedenbal of Outer Mongolia—for all practical purposes part of the Soviet Union — the average age of the leaders in the other 12 Communist countries is 63.

Premier Khrushchev, 70, has been near the top of the hierarchy for more than a quarter century and rules by what is basically the same doctrine as his predecessors. His prospective successor, Leonid Brezhnev, is 57.

Chairman Mao Tze-Tung of the Chinese Communist party is 70. He has controlled the party since the mid-1930s and his application of doctrine is even more rigid than in the Soviet Union. His prospective successor, Lui Shao-Chih, a sort of high priest of Communist scriptures, is 66.

Ho Chi Minh was one of the Communist International's agents who founded the Chinese party in the early 1920s. From the way he runs North Viet Nam, there is no indication that his outlook is any less inflexible. His prospective successor, Pham Van Dong, is 58.

Wladyslaw Gomulka of Poland is 59; Tito of Yugoslavia, 72; the plodding, dogma-ridden Walter Ulbricht of East Germany, 71; Gheorghiu-Dej of Romania, 62. The youngest Communist boss in Eastern Europe is Janos Kadar of Hungary, 52.

Even in Cuba, much of the party is old. Blas Roca, who is Moscow's man in Havana, is 55, and has had innumerable headaches trying to keep his "old" Communists from being swept entirely out of the picture by Castro's impatient "new" Communists, eager to spread the revolution all over Latin America.

In the non-Communist world, the Communist party leadership is aging. Italy's Palmiro Togliatti is 71. Waldeck Rochet of France is 59. West Germany's Max Reimann is about 60. Luis Carlos Prestes, veteran of Red turbulence in Brazil, is 66. In Japan, the present party chairman, pro-Chinese Sanzo Nozaka, is 70.

Colorful figures of the Communist past are fading away. Maurice Thorez of France is dead. Dolores Ibarurri, once known in Spain as the fiery La Pasionara, is 69.

For the most part, top Communist bosses both in Red-ruled countries and elsewhere are products of Communism's first revolutionary wave 40 years ago, when they were young, impatient and spoiling for violence and power.

Once in control, they stayed there. They could be rooted out only by violence or the inexorability of nature. Dogma created by mid-19th century prophets ruled the parties. In the interests of revolutionary discipline, rigid doctrine may have served its purpose, but in the mid-20th century outdated notions became economic and social liabilities.

In the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia and other European Communist countries, long years of power diluted fervor for chaos. Comforts stemming from power made conservatism and protection of the status quo attractive to leaders.

In China, a group of men ranging in age from 60 to 78 rule by antiquated dogma mixed with old Chinese habits of collectivism.

China's present-day leaders, few of whom ever have been outside their homeland, are remnants of a once militant party hard core of 50,000 which was the target of Chiang Kai-shek's all-out war on the Communists launched in 1927. Only a handful of them—perhaps 200—remain today. These aging leaders make up the top Chinese party and government bodies, including the Communist Central Committee, and rule the nation of 650 million.

Young men are coming up behind them, but they, too, are reared in the rigid scriptures that erect walls against contamination by any social or political ideas from the outside.

In the Soviet Union there has been an obvious and sharpening clash between the older and younger generations. A younger Soviet party is emerging, made up of ambitious people who bear little resemblance to the Bolsheviks of old. The party and the system are changing, and Communism as it was pictured under Lenin and Stalin already is dying out in the U.S.S.R.

The Communist of the old days in the Soviet Union necessarily rose from the ranks when there was a dearth of educated people. That is no longer so. Members of the party now include the specialists, the technocrats, the professional people. There are able people both in the ranks and outside the party.

These Soviet people now represent a privileged, ruling class. As a result, a sort of stratification of classes seems to be setting in. The other class is made up of workers, farmers and lower rank people.

The aging of Bolshevism, which was Soviet Communism in its printine form, has provoked serious problems for Moscow with regard to its claim to lead the world movement.

The validity of the claim was weakened in 1953 with the death of Stalin. There was no leader of Stalin's stature to take his place. The relaxations, politically necessary after he died, watered down Communism inside the U.S.S.R. and made the Kremlin look less awesome to Communists around the world. It became easier to resist and defy.

Within the Soviet Union, the younger generation balked at what it regarded as the narrow-mindedness of laders brought up in the Stalinist straitjacket. Theyd id not seek violent revolution but social evolution and continuing change.

This would be counter to the ideas of old men like Premier Khrushchev, who seem to regard the business of revolution as complete in the Soviet Union and to insist that all which remains to be done now is to "build Communism." This implies slow plodding toward a distant, misty goal.

Outside the Communist bloc nations, the movement is dogged by confusion. While old men rule the Chinese party, their bid for Red expansion is made to younger countries and younger elements aborad, to what they call the "national liberation movement." If there is danger in this, the Chinese still are a have-not nation, without much to lose by gambling.

But to older generation Communists in the U.S.S.R. — with much to lose in gambling on the possibility of war — and to established Communists in advanced countries, things are different. It's all right with them, now, to avoid the sort of risks they would eagerly have taken a generation ago, and to avoid open revolutionary warfare while working for parliamentary change. It's more comfortable that way for the older men.

Chileans Pick A President On Sept. 4

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chileans will pick as their next president either a Marxist friend and admirer of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro or a moderate leftist who leans toward the Western camp.

The Sept. 4 presidential election presents these unusual features:

1. There is no government candidate.

2. Castro's friend could become the first Marxist to win power in Latin America through a legal, free election.

3. Congress has the constitutional power to drop the winner, unless he has an absolute majority, and pick another candidate as president.

Front-runners are Salvador Allende, 56, Communist-supported doctrinarian who has vowed to take over American holdings, and Eduardo Frei, 53, a moderately leftist Christian Democrat with a platform of social reform.

A third man in the race, Julio Duran, of the Centrist Radical party, seems a distant prospect. All three candidates are senators.

Incumbent President Jorge Alessandri supports no one. He is known to dislike all three candidates and has kept himself aloof from the campaign. He is barred from re-election.

Allende, a nonpracticing psychiatrist, is the candidate of the Popular Action Front (FRAP), a formidable alliance of the Communist party, his own Socialists and three other minor groups.

This is his third try for the presidency. He lost to Alessandri by a mere 33,000 votes in 1958.

Allende has vowed to take over the $2 billion in U.S. holdings, with a specific promise to nationalize the Anaconda and Kennecott Copper Companies. His party dominates most labor unions, including the 15,000 persons working in the Anaconda and Kennecott mines.

Plump, quiet Allende draws a line between himself and the firebrand Cuban leader. While the Cuban revolution had to resort to violence, he says, his revolution will win peacefully, through a constitutional victory in the election.

It seems likely the Cuban sanctions voted by the inter-American foreign ministers hurt Allende's potential vote appeal among independent voters and that Frei is presently ahead. Frei has support from his Christian Democrats, Chile's biggest single party; the powerful rightist Liberal and Conservative parties, and from smaller groups.

Where Allende's power lies in the peasants and union members, Frei is dominant in the capital, which has nearly a third of the three million registered voters.

Frei, a lanky, scholarly looking 6-footer, says he would like to nationalize foreign holdings but the time is not yet ripe. He calls for increased copper production through new investments by the U.S. companies. Chile draws 75 per cent of its foreign exchange earnings from copper.

New 'Sexless' Fashions Unveiled

NEW YORK—Along with most designers this season James Galanos of California did "pants" which he showed in his collection. Shaped like jump suits, the pants ensembles (as one shown here) were for evening — done in splashy florals on silks and brocades. (UPI Telephoto)

By Jean Sprain Wilson
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sexless," muttered the males. "Divine," murmured the females as James Galanos had the last word on what the moneyed miss will wear this winter.

Other American collections opened three months ago and the French ones recently, but the California designer protected himself from style plagiarism by waiting until the season was practically here before revealing his own designs.

His only concessions to the trousers trend here and abroad are quilted Chinese brocade hostess jump suits with sleeveless winglike velvet coats over them.

As far as the topless fashion madness goes, Galanos conceded to bareness on the spine side of the body only.

A self-fabric bra was a part of the otherwise backless to the waist number, with gem dandies dangling fron the back band.

But from the very first number—a black semi-fitted princess line with rounded button-detailed sleeves—it was obvious Thursday that architecture of the costume was more important to Galanos than the framework of the lady under it.

Among the slim coat and suit styling details were pocket flaps, tiny lapels, welt seaming, side-wrapped and apron-pleated skirts, belts banded across the front, and some back belts slung so low you could swing on them.

For the cocktail crowd, Galanos recommended starkly simple bias-cut wools or crepes with long sleeves and hemfiared skirts. For the discotheque enthusiasts the dresses were barer, with V-plunges, halter necks or shoestring straps uncovering pale raw bones.

Mudd, Trout Convention Anchor Men

CBS News Correspondents Robert Trout and Roger Mudd will act as anchor men for the CBS News coverage of the Democratic National Convention, Aug. 24-27 on the CBS Television Network, it was announced today by CBS News President Fred W. Friendly.

Dallas Townsend will anchor the coverage of the convention on the CBS Radio Network, succeeding Trout in that assignment.

Walter Cronkite, who has served as CBS News anchor man for convention coverage on the CBS Television Network, will provide comprehensive convention coverage in his regular post as anchor man and managing editor of the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite.

CBS News Correspondent Eric Sevareid, whose analysis and interpretation of the Republican Convention in San Francisco were hailed as the most significant contribution to Network coverage of the event, will play an even larger role in Atlantic City, as will CBS News Correspondent Harry Reasoner. A 22 man corps of CBS News correspondents will cover the floor, the corridors and the exterior of Convention Hall, the key candidates' headquarters and related events in Washington.

The pairing of Trout and Mudd in the anchor posts teams one of the most respected and honored veterans of broadcast news with one of its most talented young correspondents.

Ancient Redwood Survives a Fire

PORTERVILLE, Calif. (AP) — An ancient Redwood tree named Moses has won its eight-day battle for life against a persistent fire which smoldered deep within its trunk.

Harry Harp, a state division of forestry dispatcher, announced Thursday that the fire was out and that Moses — a seedling before the birth of Christ — would probably live another 2,000 years.

The fire was started by lightning which struck the tree Aug. 4 and 6. It burned into the trunk 20 feet from the top of the 250-foot giant and fire fighters used helicopters to drop water and chemicals on the blaze.

YES—An Answer to Jobless Youth

What can we do about the high-school dropout?
In Trenton, N.J., they've stopped asking and started acting

By KENNETH ROGERS

"ALL I WANT is a chance to work, a chance to get started in life," says Tommy, a slender 18-year-old in Trenton, N.J. Discouraged and desperate—but not yet defeated—he is typical of our lost generation of jobless youth.

Tommy's plea echoes throughout the land. One out of six persons in the 16-21 age bracket is both out of school and out of work. At least 300,000 discouraged youths have stopped job hunting altogether. While automation and other technological advances reduce beginners' jobs at the rate of a quarter-million each year, more and more young people enter the labor market.

Unless drastic steps are taken, in five years we will have 1½ million idle youth without skills, education, or a future—"social dynamite" in our affluent society.

For Tommy and others like him eager to enter the world of work, one answer is YES—Trenton's hustling and dedicated Youth Employment Service. In the past year YES has unearthed jobs for more than 250 boys and girls who otherwise would still be on the human scrap heap of "unemployables" or "born failures."

As the YES idea catches fire, public and voluntary employment offices geared to the needs of young people have sprung up in Indiana, California, New York, and other states.

The Trenton project started about two years ago in a low-income neighborhood. Its objectives differed from those of most other groups in that permanent career openings were sought rather than palliative summer jobs to keep kids occupied. Soon it became the official youth job center for the entire city.

Spark plug of Trenton's YES is its executive director, Mrs. Barbara Weintraub, a fortyish, soft-spoken former schoolteacher. Assisting her is a professional staff of three women. Financial support comes from the United Fund and other local contributors.

"There's a real need for a setup like ours," says Mrs. Weintraub. "Most young people who come here are insecure, depressed, or angry at the run-arounds they're given. They don't know how to dress or act for an interview. They have unrealistic job objectives and are ignorant of what is expected of them in the work world. At other employment agencies they're uncomfortable and are met with disdain when they admit they're dropouts.

"At YES, we offer not only warmth and sympathy but practical counseling. Each youngster is treated as an individual. We start with the person and then search for a job to fit what he can do. If boys and girls are not high-school graduates, they can't even get to see the personnel manager in many businesses and industries. We at YES go directly to the people who do the hiring and try to sell them our applicants."

Few dropouts have marketable skills and many can barely read and write. "You might say," Mrs. Weintraub explains, "that we specialize in the impossible—finding employment for the so-called unemployables."

Many applicants need haircuts, others need (and are given) decent clothes to make a respectable impression on a prospective employer. Two evenings a week the young people attend a group course in grooming and job-interview techniques conducted by volunteer social workers.

SOMETIMES a talk with a YES woman unearths latent skills. One 19-year-old named Bill had been a construction laborer, but work was seasonal. In an interview with Mrs. Eileen Bennett, he revealed that he had been "good" in technical drawing at school. Seizing this lead, Mrs. Bennett made eight phone calls before she finally found a firm of architects that would take Bill on as an apprentice draftsman. The day after he went to work Bill jubilantly called Mrs. Bennett. "I can't believe it," he said. "This is the dream I've always had."

Dropouts are often encouraged to return to school and may be given tutoring. Joe, for instance, saw no value in a high-school diploma. YES arranged to have him spend two days in the tool-and-die department of a major Trenton plant, just watching. The boy was deeply impressed. At the end of the two days the department head assured him: "If you finish school, I'll give you a job here as a trainee." Joe decided to graduate.

Although some employers cannot consider dropouts for their openings and others are reluctant to do so, Trenton's business and industrial leaders generally have welcomed YES. As a luggage manufacturer put it: "The people at YES have helped me more than I've helped them. I used to have an employment problem, but now I'm getting all my new, untrained people through YES."

For youngsters eager to enter the world of work, even though poorly equipped, "No" is a heartbreaking word.

A better answer seems to be YES.

The Women Behind the Beatles

Nobody wants to talk much about the sweethearts and mothers of these teen-age idols—nobody except the idols themselves, who do as they please

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

On the beach in Florida, a frenetic pair captures prize—Ringo Starr.

IT IS NO COINCIDENCE that millions of Beatles fans the world over know little about the women who have played, and still are playing, an important part in their lives.

Their discoverer and manager, 29-year-old Brian Epstein, feels that any romantic attachment would cut short the Beatles' popularity. There isn't much he can do about 23-year-old John Lennon, who was already married to a girl named Cynthia when Epstein took over the quartet.

But nowadays Epstein will not even comment on 22-year-old Paul McCartney's supposed engagement to actress Jane Asher or the girls dated by the two remaining Beatles, George Harrison, 21, and Ringo Starr, 24. Nor does he seem eager to publicize those women most responsible for the Beatles in the first place—their mothers. George Harrison explains: "Brian doesn't tell us exactly what to say, but we know he prefers we keep our families out of our careers."

Yet when I spent a day with the Beatles at Twickenham Studios in London, where they were filming their first motion picture, "A Hard Day's Night," they seemed surprisingly at ease in discussing their private lives. The reasons, I was told later, were Brian Epstein's absence during the interview, the Beatles' growing independence, and the fact that they were getting upset about all the misinformation being spread about them.

"One reporter described how I was reared in the shabbiest section of Liverpool," John Lennon told me. "Obviously, the writer never talked to any member of my family, nor had he ever been to our home. While we weren't wealthy, we lived in a very nice duplex right on the edge of a golf course, not far from Paul McCartney's house."

John, the "brainy" Beatle, doesn't remember much about his mother Julia and less about his father. "I was 2 when my father walked out on us," he said.

While Mrs. Lennon worked long hours to make ends meet, John never went hungry and was always well dressed. And it was Mrs. Lennon who encouraged John's inclination for music by teaching him to play the banjo.

When he was 14, his mother was killed in an auto accident. "I never knew how much I loved her until then," John reflected. "Thereafter, I was raised by my Aunty Mimi, a wonderful woman. To support us, she took in students. She made enough money to pay for my tuition at the Liverpool College of Art." At art school he met and fell in love with a fellow artist, Cynthia, also 16. "It was love at first drawing," he told me, "but we were much too young to get married. She wanted to become a teacher, and I think she would have done very well had she stuck to it."

At the time, John, Paul, and George had already formed a band, but although they were close friends, John kept the news of his courtship to himself. "I considered love a very sacred and personal thing," he explained. He did not confide in his friends until they played at a dive in Hamburg, Germany, and the other boys tried to fix him up with a pretty Fräulein. John and Cynthia were married in 1960 when he returned to England. They now have a son, John, Jr., who is 18 months old.

COMMENTING on the present, John admitted: "It's not an easy life for Cynthia. We are gone much of the time and, because of the baby, she usually stays behind. She does all the cooking and looks after the flat. We don't go out much, and when she comes along on a trip, as she did when we went to the United States earlier this year, my aunty usually comes down from Liverpool to stay with the baby."

He claims that Cynthia doesn't mind his frequent travels nor the adoration of the world's teen-agers, but a girl friend of hers insists she has seen Cynthia near tears when she was shoved aside and nearly trampled by a mob of fans. Also, the friend said, Cynthia may easily be the most envied young woman in England, but she is one of the loneliest, too.

Paul McCartney, John's neighbor and close friend since both were 14, lost his mother within weeks of the accident that killed John's mother. Thereafter, he was reared by his father, a moderately well-off Liverpool cotton broker. "We lived on the other side of the golf course from John," he told me. "We had a good family life. I only wish my mom could have lived long enough to enjoy our success."

The McCartneys were a close-knit family when his mother suddenly took sick and died shortly afterward. Paul prefers not to elaborate on that awful time.

While officially John is the only member of the Beatles who is married, Paul, the handsomest of the quartet, is rumored to be engaged or even secretly married to pretty 18-year-old actress Jane Asher, whose father is a prominent Middlesex doctor and whose mother is a teacher at the Royal College of Music. Her brother Pete was working for a degree in economics until Jane started dating Paul. Then he decided it was stupid to waste so much time on a career that might never pay off, so he teamed up with another boy and started to look for a song they could record.

Paul and John, who write songs for the Beatles, volunteered to create one for the boys—which quickly became the No. 1 song in England and knocked one of the Beatles' own numbers off the top of the list. Yet Paul volunteered to write another for Jane's brother and his partner, indicating what good sports the Beatles are—or how much Paul loves Jane!

John Lennon, first Beatle to wed, says pace is hard for wife Cynthia.

Jane maintains they are going steady but complains they have no privacy in London. "Whenever we go out," she explains, "the girls recognize Paul and just go daffy." Consequently, they have dinner by candlelight at her home, look at the "telly," or take pictures. Paul is quite a camera bug, and Jane is his favorite subject.

Meanwhile, Jane's father has become quite fed up with the whole Beatle entanglement. His daughter's West Indies "vacation" with Paul—though accompanied by Ringo Starr and his most recent girl friend—hasn't helped his disposition. When questioned about his daughter's possible secret marriage, he snapped, "I will not confirm or deny anything."

THE FATHER of Maureen Cox, the 17-year-old girl who completed the West Indies foursome, seemed less reluctant to discuss his daughter. "I would have given her permission anyway. Maureen is a sensible girl and well able to look after herself," he said when informed she had gone to the West Indies with the smallest but most popular Beatle—who was rumored engaged to Ann-Margret just a short while ago. When I asked Ringo about Ann-Margret, he insisted, "I never met her and never talked to her."

Ringo, alias Richard Starkey, usually the quietest member of the group, can also be the most outspoken, probably because he's the only one of the four who grew up in the toughest section in Liverpool, a district called Dingle.

Ringo's father is a painter, his mother was a barmaid. To this day, his parents are too proud to accept their son's financial offer to move them to a better neighborhood. While Ringo didn't volunteer the information, a friend told me that his mother had but one request to make of her son when the big money started to roll in. "She asked for a set of false teeth."

Ringo himself insists, "I had a perfectly decent childhood, and my mom made sure that I had proper manners."

Just how she did this was not clear to me since he spent most of his life away from home due to an incredible series of childhood illnesses that kept him in hospitals year after year. It started with appendicitis when he was 6. This was followed by peritonitis, which hospitalized him for a year. He got up one day while still too weak to walk around, fell down, and broke so many bones in his fragile body that he had to undergo a dozen operations—which kept him in the hospital for three more years!

When he was 13, he decided to go to London on a short holiday with money he had saved up from doing odd jobs. His mother tried unsuccessfully to talk him out of it because she felt he wasn't old enough to look after himself.

She was right. A couple of weeks later, he was back in a Liverpool hospital. He'd been caught in the rain one night and came down with one of the few maladies he hadn't had before—pleurisy. This put him out of commission for another year! But it was his enforced inactivity and his mother's concern that led to his musical career.

"I had wanted to become a hairdresser," Ringo told me, "but while I was in the hospital, my mom asked if there was anything she could get me. I told her I would like to do something with my hands, just to keep busy. I thought I might like a set of drums. I know it wasn't easy for her to get them for me, but she did."

George Harrison, who now shares a flat with Ringo Starr, probably had the most normal childhood of the four Beatles. His father earned a respectable living as a bus driver, and his parents still live in a middle-class neighborhood of Liverpool.

As with Ringo, it was his mother who was responsible for George's musical career. When he was 14, she gave him a guitar for Christmas although he had never shown any interest in music. But he liked the instrument, and his mother liked what he was doing with it. She is still his No. 1 fan.

Even as a boy, George was so handsome that neighborhood girls would stop at his house just to look at him! He is also the quietest and best-mannered of the group.

BEFORE I MET HIM, I had been told that George was in love with actress Hayley Mills. "That's not true," he said, "I think she's a very cute girl, but very, very young."

George is aware that Brian Epstein is deeply concerned about further romantic involvements by the three unmarried Beatles. But in recent weeks, George has become more defiant about Epstein's influence. "It is true the act will probably fall apart if Paul, Ringo, or I get married," he admitted, "but believe me, if I want to, I will, no matter what the consequences."

He meant it, and I think the other unmarried Beatles feel the same way. Their attitude toward life, success, and the future seems one of incredible disbelief about what has occurred so far, complete enjoyment of what is happening now, and a conviction that, since it has to come to an end sooner or later, why sacrifice their own personal happiness?

Wedding bells may ring for actress Jane Asher and Paul McCartney.

Their earnings have been invested so competently by their manager that they should have no financial worries for the rest of their lives—unless, of course, they start squandering their money, a trait none of them seems to have acquired. John and Cynthia have a modest flat with no live-in servants. Paul lives in a fairly inexpensive place, and George and Ringo share an apartment.

In spite of the fact that Epstein gets 25 percent of their earnings—more than any one of the four Beatles gets since they have to divide the remaining 75 percent—they are all well enough off to be married and have families—and undoubtedly will as soon as they find the right girls.

Perhaps by the time this article appears in print, at least one and maybe two of them will have taken that step. That would be bad news for their fans, but as all four Beatles would undoubtedly admit, "It's been a lark."

inside tips on outside doings

Whether your baby is a loll-about, a creep-about or a gadabout, summer is a wonderful season for small fry because they can be outdoors so much. Timely tips:

• Even though you think baby is safely tan by now, she (or he) shouldn't be exposed to direct sunlight for more than 30 minutes.

• Backyard or beach, don't let a toddler run too much in the heat. An overtired child tends to be fretful.

Summertime lip-smackers

No matter what the season, fruits are great favorites with babies. But somehow in summer they seem to be especially welcome. If they're Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits, that is. Gerber Fruits have unusual meal-appeal because they're flash-cooked in a matter of seconds to retain tempting, true-to-nature colors and flavors. What's more, flash-cooking in the absence of air preserves the utmost in precious vitamin values so important to your baby's nutrition.

Playpen pointers

(1) If you park baby's playpen outdoors, do pick a shaded, sheltered spot so sudden gusts won't chill baby if he perspires. (2) On most warm days baby will fare best with panties or sunsuit. On sizzlers your darling will be more comfy with a cotton shirt or lightweight dress.

Splash flash

A kiddy lawn pool is a delightful but inexpensive investment for an older tot. Fun for your bathing beauty, relaxing for you as you watch. (Good time to do sit-down chores.) Baby's bathtub toys, and a plastic cup for dipping and pouring, add immeasurably to the fun.

Dan Gerber on digestibility

"It should be reassuring to know that all Gerber Baby Foods are "custom-cooked" according to their own requirements to insure ready digestibility and also to help preserve nutritive values. Different foods require different attention. Fruits, can be flash-cooked. Meat dinners, certain vegetables and other foods require slower treatment. Whatever the method, cooking time and temperature are controlled to bring out the best in each particular product."

Newest Sky Sport

It beats an airplane or a glider, say its enthusiasts, because in a sailplane you fly like a bird!

By THEODORE IRWIN

ON A RECENT balmy afternoon, I found myself high in the sky, seated in a sleek, graceful plane—which had no engine or propellers!

The pilot in front of me had just released the towline connecting us to the ordinary airplane that had lifted us into the sky. Now, on eerily silent wings, we dipped and climbed above the rolling hills around Elmira, N.Y.

Near a puff of white cloud, 3,000 feet up, a red-tailed hawk swooped by our cockpit as if welcoming us to his playground. And suddenly I realized that I felt like a hawk; the plane's wings seemed to be a part of me.

After a while, we headed back to our landing area on Harris Hill, gliding effortlessly down and landing softly.

Like thousands of other American sky sailors, I had been soaring in a sailplane. At Elmira, the U.S. soaring capital, and at airports and special soaring sites throughout the country, men, women, and teen-agers are realizing the dream of centuries: using nature's energy to make like a bird. Propelled only by air currents, sailplanes have flown almost nine miles high and more than 500 miles across country. The world's distance record, 544 miles, was set last summer by German sky sailors. A Californian, Paul Bickel, holds the altitude record, 46,260 feet.

Soaring attracts boys as young as 14 and others as old as 72-year-old Walter Krohne of Orlando, Fla. The roster also includes actor Cliff Robertson, astronaut Alan Shepard, and novelist Ernest Gann.

At Elmira, I learned about sailplaning from W. E. "Tony" Doherty, a tall, bronzed, dyed-in-the-wool sky sailor who is director of the pioneering Schweizer Soaring School.

He explained that soaring is based on a simple principle: the design of the airfoil enables the sailplane to descend less rapidly than the rising air currents around it. About all the cockpit contains are a red knob for releasing the towline, rudder pedals for turning, a "joy stick" to work the ailerons and elevator, an air-speed indicator, a variometer which tells you when you're rising or sinking, and a lever that controls the wing "spoilers" for smoother soaring and landing. You can be launched aloft by a power plane or, at the brow of a hill, by a tow car.

"DON'T CONFUSE SOARING WITH GLIDING," Doherty told me. "In a glider, which is a simple motorless aircraft, you coast only downward. In a sailplane, a highly advanced form of gliding, you take advantage of the wind, up-currents of air, and any energy in the atmosphere to prolong your flight and gain and maintain altitude. That's soaring."

It's those up-currents of air that give you the lift you need. One type, called the ridge lift, is an air current deflected upward when a strong wind blows against a hill or cliff, building a rising wall of air just as waves breaking against a wall drive up spray. In such a ridge lift, a sailplane can fly for hours. The hills surrounding Elmira have made it a natural setting for soaring.

What helped boom soaring was our knowledge of another kind of air-current lift called thermals. These are rising columns of warm air resulting from the sun's unequal heating of the earth's surface. In most parts of the nation during the summer you can see the puffy cumulous clouds at the top of a thermal. Shafts of the swirling hot air may rise for several miles. In a sailplane, you can circle in a thermal, ascending 10,000 feet or higher. Then you break out in search of another, using the air columns as steppingstones across country.

The new frontier in soaring is standing or mountain-wave flying. Winds roaring over great mountain ranges build up air waves to great heights. Sailplanes have flown the Sierras at altitudes of nearly 45,000 feet.

Why is soaring catching on as a sport? "It's a personal challenge," says Doherty. "You're harnessing the forces of nature and pitting your skills against them. There's the excitement of climbing up and up, with no noise except the murmur of the wind."

I asked a veteran airline pilot, who spends his weekends soaring, whether he was on a busman's holiday.

"Commercial flying," he replied, "is a highly specialized job. But when I'm up in a sailplane with no engine, hydraulic, electrical, or communications system to worry about, I'm in full control. Soaring has put the fun back into flying."

To others, soaring means "joining the birds." According to Paul Schweizer of Schweizer Aircraft Corp., which builds most of the nation's sailplanes at Elmira, hawks fly for fun, too. "When we see a hawk," he remarked, "we know it has located a thermal. We often chase hawks to see what they'll do." In the West, sky sailors chase eagles and vultures.

As in any sport, soaring carries an element of danger. Carelessness and brashness have caused a few fatalities. In one case near San Francisco last year, a pilot carelessly flew too close to a ridge, got caught in a downdraft, stalled, and crashed. But Tony Doherty insists: "The most dangerous part of soaring is the drive to and from the airport."

Some 40 regional soaring meets are staged all summer and early fall. At Elmira, the annual regatta will be held on Labor Day, and the annual Snowbird Meet closes the season on Thanksgiving weekend.

In this Space Age, outside of orbiting the earth, there are few thrills left in the sky to match the exhilaration of soaring.

Incident at a Family Reunion

By JAMES T. FARRELL

Author of "Studs Lonigan," "The Silence of History," and "What Time Collects"

THE MOST INSPIRING moment of my life? Most people seem to expect me to talk about my reaction to Studs Lonigan being accepted for publication. Or my reaction to a letter from H. L. Mencken in 1932 when he wrote me that he wanted to buy "Helen, I Love You" for the American Mercury.

Thirty-seven books and many short stories later, I find there has been much in my life to select from. There have been many inspirations, many renewals of confidence and hope.

But one of these was private, personal, and of special meaning to me. It was an experience that happened last Thanksgiving Day. I was to have dinner with my son, Kevin James Farrell, and his mother, Hortense Alden Farrell, the actress.

Hortense and I were divorced, and consequently I didn't see Kevin as often as I would have liked. He was now 23, but there was a period during his teens when our bond was not the close one that should exist between father and son. I believe a father owes his son courage, but at times I was concerned about whether I had given him this.

A few other friends had been invited to Thanksgiving dinner. I was to carve the turkey. I carve with great skill and enjoy doing it. I get few opportunities.

There would be a good dinner and a quiet time. Memories would flood the air. Happy ones, sad ones—but even some sad memories are good.

A friend or acquaintance showed up, uninvited. She brought with her a new fellow whom she was seeing. Both had had a little to drink. I had not met this fellow before. He acted overfamiliar. Every time someone would start to talk, he would interrupt. He asked challenging, personal questions which were on the verge of insult. Some of his remarks lacked coherence.

Several times I tried to stop him. He wouldn't let up. He behaved badly and was insulting to me and the others, particularly the women.

I believe in gallantry. I decided that something had to be done about the fellow.

HORTENSE had been in the kitchen cooking the dinner. She came into the living room. The man started up again, worse than before. I told him to stop talking to me.

Suddenly, he slapped Hortense on the rear—and in front of my son! She was stunned by the familiarity of the gesture from someone she had just met. She just stood there.

That was it. I decided to throw him out. I asked him to leave.

"Get out!"

It should have been clear that I meant what I said. He just sat there. I repeated: "Get out! If you don't, I'll throw you out bodily."

He turned around to look at the other guests. He obviously expected some support, some protest of my order. But by this time, everyone had had enough of him. One look at their faces and he knew it. He got up and walked over to the hall closet for his coat. He put it on and turned around to face me.

It was just at this point that Kevin jumped up and stood in front of me. He did it as though it were a simple, natural act. He would defend his father, stand with him; that is, he would defend me, stand with me.

THE MAN started out. Just as he reached the door, he turned around to Kevin and put his hand out to him.

"No, I won't shake hands with you. You insulted my father; and my father was right," Kevin told him.

After he left, there was very little talk of the incident. The occasion became a simple, happy one. Soon I was carving the turkey. We ate. We talked.

I had to leave fairly early to return to my hotel and get on with my current writing. This I regretted; but it had to be.

A few people who remained told me afterward that when some latecomers arrived, Kevin enthusiastically exclaimed to them, "Do you know what my dad did?"

He told the story.

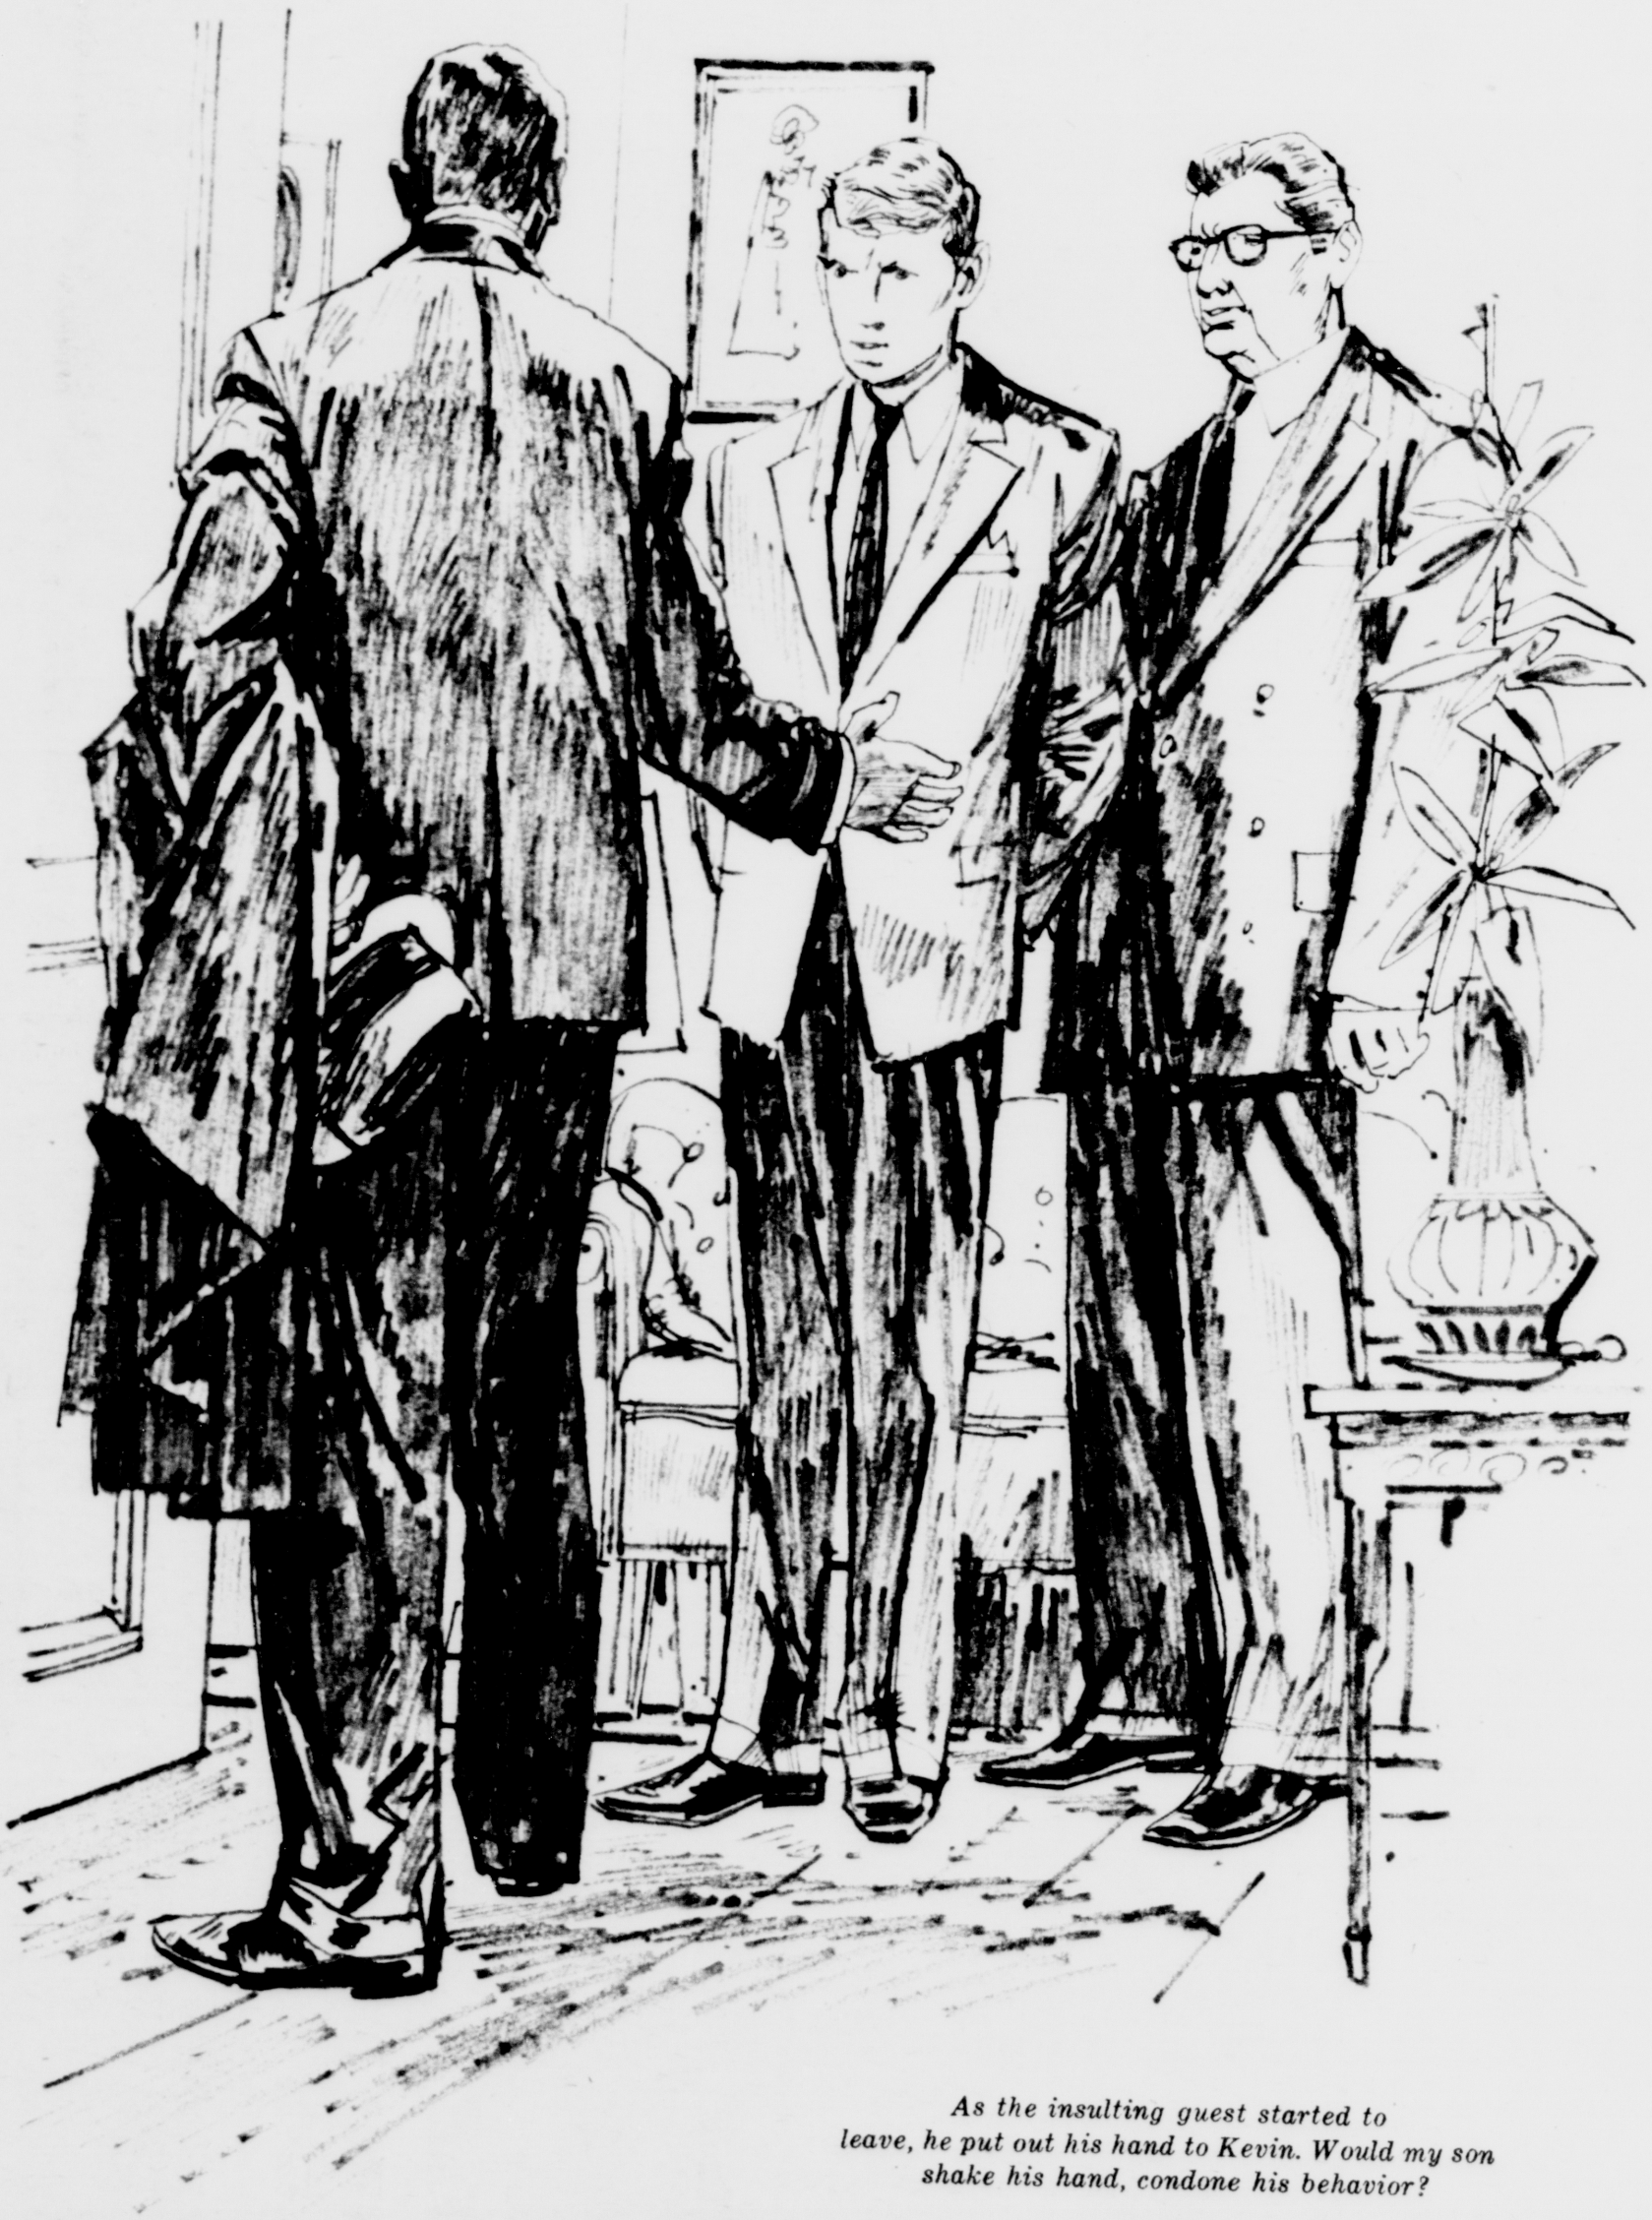

And when I tell the story, I say, "Do you know what my son did?"

I felt such renewal. I had not failed my son.

And he had not failed me.

One guest at the Thanksgiving get-together was vulgar and obnoxious; would his rude behavior break the fragile bond between this famous author and his young son?

MY MOST INSPIRING MOMENT

As the insulting guest started to leave, he put out his hand to Kevin. Would my son shake his hand, condone his behavior?
